More for education

Virginia Beach School Board Chairman Roy A. Woods, center, recently announced a $9.6 million windfall from the federal government to be used for a new junior high school in Kempsville. With Woods, left to right are: Vice Mayor Barbara Henley; E. Carlton Bowyer, assistant superintendent for operational services; Dr. Woods; Dr. Fred Benham, assistant superintendent for finance; and Thomas Muehlenbeck, city manager. See editorial, page 2.

Beach is getting bigger

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

Virginia Beach is getting bigger all the time—and so are its operating budgets.

That was the message that came through from City Manager Thomas H. Muehlenbeck as he presented his proposed Operating Budget for Fiscal year 1984-85 Monday afternoon.

However, he also said that the financial situation of the Beach was good enough so that no new taxes or tax rate increases are contemplated in the $335,806,678 budget. Not only will the Beach be able to maintain its current level of services to its citizens, but, Muehlenbeck said, the city will provide even more services.

According to Giles Dodd, assistant to the city manager in charge of finance, Muehlenbeck said that the budget has "not quite doubled" every five years.

The education budget was accepted as effective July 1 by the School Board—$140,966,023 or 41.98 percent of the total budget. This budget provides for an average 10 percent salary increase for all personnel including step increases.

Last year also the school board budget was left in tact and the tax rate unchanged.

Muehlenbeck said the administrative structure of the city needs to be changed to keep pace with the rapid growth and changes occurring at the Beach. In anticipation of costs anticipated with reorganization he has earmarked $150,000.

Muehlenbeck's budget also calls for a 7.5 percent general salary increase for city employees effective July 1 in an effort to overtake the increased cost of living.

The public hearing on the budget has been rescheduled for April 23 at 2 p.m. on the day of the regular night Council meeting. However, citizens who will be able to get to the day hearing will be permitted to speak after 5 p.m. The public hearing also will be televised for the first time. Council is equipped to televise sessions in the Council Chambers but would have to enlist Cox Cable TV's help in televising the public hearing at another location such as the Pavilion.

Beach Republican women meet

The regular meeting of the Beach Suburban Republican Women's Club will be held on Wednesday, April 11 at the Officers Club at the Oceana Naval Air Station at 11:30 a.m.

The speakers will be State Senator Joe Canada and Delegate "Buster" O'Brien.

For reservations call Lois Roulstone, 464-5379, or Flora Dunham, 340-5633.

Power lift

Beacher wins state title

Story and photos by Gene Driggers

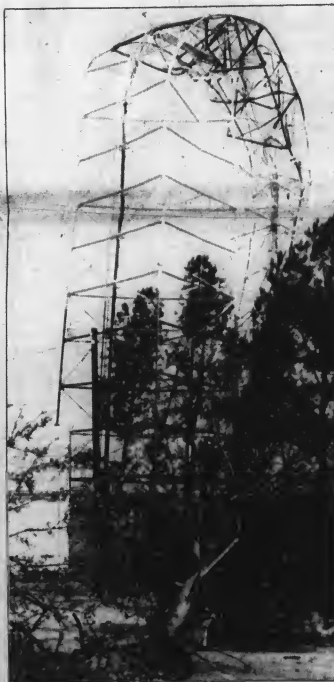

Standing with a steel look of concentration and regulated breathing, he bends forward, picks up a bar loaded with 770 pounds of weights and stands upright with shoulders back and knees locked.

He dropped the bar, after a down signal from the referee and the arena exploded into a roar of clapping, yelling and whistling, applauding the record-breaking lift.

With this power lift, Virginia Beach resident David Colangelo, won the 275 pound class in the 1984 Virginia State Senior Championship Powerlifting competition. This win is his third straight in his weight class in state competition.

Councilman Dr. J. Henry McCoy Jr. pointed out that the public hearing three years ago in the Council Chambers accommodated 179 speakers. Since then, however, the hearings have been held at the Pavilion.

lifting the weights from the floor to a full standing position and held until the down signal is received, accounted for his three lift total.

Colangelo's interest in weight lifting was sparked by Frank Giances, an Olympic lifter. "This interest continued into my Navy days," Colangelo said. "It wasn't until I was serving aboard the USS EISENHOWER, that I met John Besswanger, a 17 year veteran in the sport. John saw that I had the potential in this sport and started me on the road to where I am now."

According to Colangelo, powerlifting is unlike any other sport. You have to live it, sleep it, think it!

He summarized: "If you put water in a car's gas tank, it won't run. The same is true of powerlifting. You have to put the right amount of everything into it."

Unlike other sports, powerlifting is not very popular with the public because the average person can't relate to it, although it is making strides in the sports world. It has its own world championships but is not recognized by any other sports organization (like the Olympics).

One of the most important areas of the sport is mind over body. "You have to have a steel trap mind," Colangelo states. "You have to believe you can do it, sleep it, think it!"

Claims child abuse month

month is Child Abuse Prevention Month by proclamation of Mayor Louise R. Jones.

To underscore what could be when children are protected from abuse, ten Virginia Beach students were introduced to City Council Monday afternoon as recipients of various honors in the state "Reflections" program of the State Parent-Teacher Association.

Mrs. Dolores Delaney, legislative chairman of the Virginia Beach Council of PTA's, said the successes of the students are symbolic, that the Council wants all children to achieve up to their potential.

Recipients of the awards were presented pins by Vice Mayor Barbara Henley who presided in the absence of Mayor Louis R. Jones. They were Suzanne Frailing, Green Run Elementary, second grade; Mark Flanagan, Brandon Junior High, ninth grade; Johnathan Garner, Holland Kindergarten; Jessica Frick, Green Run Elementary, 6th grade; Anne Byrd, Princess Anne High School, 11th grade, third place, senior high literature; Angela Davila, Kemps Landing, seventh grade, first place, junior high art; Dawn Jones, Green Run High, 10th grade, first place, high school art; Katherine Ann Schoenhoff, Bayside Junior High seventh grade, second place, music; Michael Chertow, First Colonial High, 10th grade, first place, music, and Lisa Bennett, Holland Elementary, second grade, third place, music.

The proclamation stated that 11,690 cases of child abuse and neglect were substantiated in Virginia during fiscal 1982-83.

Students troubleshoot cars

More than 50 high schools in Virginia, including the Virginia Beach Career Development Center will participate in the 1984-85 Plymouth-AAA Trouble Shooting Contest according to the Tidewater Automobile Association and the Virginia Chrysler Dealers.

The Plymouth-AAA Trouble Shooting Contest, a nationwide auto technician student competition for high schools, will involve more than 200,000 students, taking automotive courses in over 2,000 schools in every state of the union. The state contest is sponsored jointly by the Virginia AAA Clubs and the Virginia Chrysler Dealers.

Plymouth Dealers. Students in Tidewater Virginia will be taking the written test at Tidewater Community College's Virginia Beach campus and at the Thomas Nelson Community College in Hampton, on April 5.

The participating schools in Tidewater will send their four best automotive students to take the written exam. The two highest scoring students from each school will be paired as a team. The ten teams scoring the highest on the written exam will move on to the state hands-on competition where each team works against the clock to repair a 1984 Plymouth Turismo which has "mechanical bugs."

Easter sunrise services set

Easter sunrise service at Fort Story, Virginia Beach, has been a community tradition for over fifty-seven years. The service this year are sponsored by the Beach Borough Ministerial Association, the City of Virginia Beach, and the military command at Fort Story.

The 57th annual community sunrise service is conducted at the Cape Henry Memorial Cross, marking the approximate site of the first landing of the Jamestown settlers on April 26, 1607, the settlers came: and on April 29 they fashioned an oak cross and set it up at a place they called Cape Henry "for Henry, Prince of Wales, oldest son of King James I of England." Here on the windswept shore, led by their chaplain Robert Hunt, they must have kneelt in prayer and thanksgiving for this new land, and their safe voyage. Thereafter, they were ready and prepared to follow their instructions to push deeper into Virginia to seek a site for settlement.

The music for this fifty-seventh annual Easter sunrise service will be provided by the First Colonial High School chorus and the Armed Forces School of Music at Little Creek. The sunrise service speaker will be Chaplain (Captain) Robert G. Leroe, Fort Story Chaplain.

The public is cordially invited to the services at Fort Story on Easter Sunday, April 22, at 5:21 a.m. In the event of inclement weather, the service will be held at the First Presbyterian Church, 36th and Pacific, Virginia Beach, Virginia at 6 a.m.

As an Electronics Mechanic at the Naval Air Rework Facility, Colangelo works with many electronic components. The one shown is a piece of electronic counter-measures gear.

Windfall

The community received a surprise last weekend when it learned Virginia Beach will receive $9.6 million in educational funds from the federal government.

The U.S. Department of Education windfall will go towards a new junior high school in Kempsville on Recreation Drive. The new school, which is expected to open by Sept. 1987, will serve about 1,400 children from local military families. The school's total capacity will be 1,800.

School Board Chairman Roy A. Woods, at a press conference announcing the grants, said grant application for funds had been submitted for years; but never with results such as this.

"Patience and perseverance does have its rewards," Dr. Woods said.

One school board member, Robert Clyburn, said he was unsure why the city received the money at this time.

"I know of no reason why we were selected," Clyburn said.

This year, the amount of revenues made available by the government to localities increased from $20 to $80 million. With more money released, and because of the substantial military population in Virginia Beach, it was logical for the growing resort city to catch the funds.

Of course, there was probably some politics involved in Virginia Beach's receiving the windfall. Certainly Virginia's senators reminded their peers of the military presence in the city and that families are happier and work harder in sound school systems with uncrowded schools. In addition, that part of the military population living on federal property does not pay real estate taxes, but does receive the same educational services available to civilians.

A great deal of Virginia Beach's economic stability is derived from local military dollars. This stabilization, however, in the future is likely to tremor as Virginia Beach's growth and water needs continue to be addressed. City officials and the community must be prepared. That is why there is need for new residential, commercial, industrial and military tax bases. Without these, homeowners' personal property and real estate taxes will have to rise in the future.

The city must build new schools to match both growth rates. The community must look ahead to meet its municipal needs.

K-9's at rest

Have you noticed that dog food commercials are now telling you how to keep your dog living longer and healthier? That's because the only time Purina loses business is when a dog dies. When it does, just as likely as not, the pet is not replaced.

Some people have special dogs; although all dog owners will tell you their dog is special. And losing a dog, whether it's a mutt or a champion, grieves its owner.

Losing a pet is one thing. Losing a partner is another.

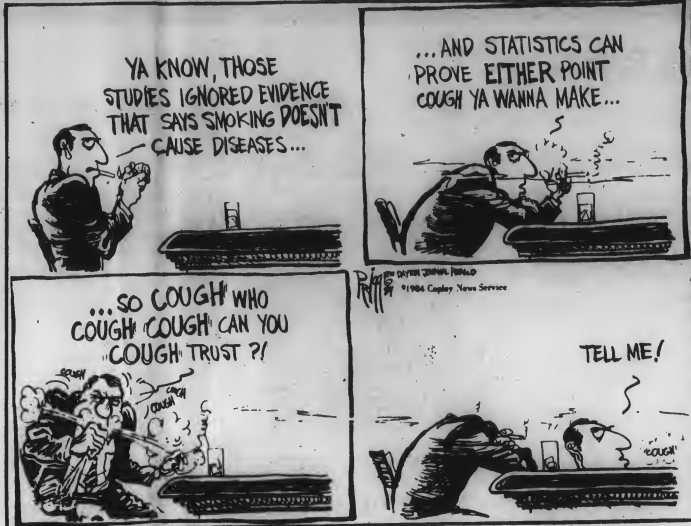

"When a guy rides two years with a dog, and somebody tries to put it in an incinerator, it doesn't sit right," Virginia Beach Police Lieutenant F. H. Drew said.

That about sums it up.

To ease the pain of losing a pet, or partner, the city of Virginia Beach will set aside a 48-square foot area for 71 K-9 gravesites. The site will be located in a cleared area near the city's K-9 training area.

Topsoil and seed for the cemetery will run the city about $270. Labor will cost between $70 and $105. This is a small price to pay to provide a decent burial for a public servant; one who may dare to go where his master may not.

National Library Week is a curiosity

Many Virginia Beach residents are nervous about curiosity. After all, it's said to have killed the cat. It can be, however, a distinctly positive quality which has historically led man to experiment, to investigate, and ultimately to improve the conditions of life after much trial and error.

It is this positive curiosity which is the underlying idea behind the Virginia Beach Public Library's National Library Week Kipling and Computers theme. You may be curious as to what these two seemingly disparate subjects could possibly have in common. Perhaps, by now, you may also realize that their similarity is curiosity itself.

Rudyard Kipling wrote a story about how the inquisitive mind continuously develops new ideas and new possibilities. These developments come at a risk and are met with doubt before they establish their validity. This situation proves true not only for the elephant in Kipling's story, but also for the computer systems presently working for you in the library. The library, whose most important client is the curious, inquisitive individual, took a risk in automating some of its manual services. Advantages were not achieved without some stumbling, some delay, and some irritation. Yet in each case, the library's automated systems can be demonstrated choices of wisdom that make it less expensive for your library staff to provide services to you. Hence...Kipling and Computers for National Library Week.

Kipling's children's classic "The Elephant's Child" will kick off the National Library Week celebration. The Moving Company-Dance Now! will perform this program about the joys and risks of curiosity. The performance is intended for children in kindergarten through sixth grade and their families. A humorous story of how the elephant got its trunk, "The Elephant's Child" takes place in an exotic jungle setting and tells the story of what happens to a curious young elephant when a mysterious jungle bird sends him off to a lively encounter with a very strong snake and a nose pulling crocodile. Sunday Abbot will narrate and Vija Cunningham will dance the role of the Elephant's Child. Music, dance, colorful and unusual costumes combine to produce a very curious performance. "The Elephant's Child" will be presented Sunday, April 4th at 2:30 at the Windsor Woods Area Library and again Wednesday, April 11th at 7:30 at the Great Neck Area Library.

National Library Week will also give you an opportunity to be curious about your library. You may have noted over the last six months that checking out books is a very different experience. We no longer use book cards and a date stamp machine, but rather, light pens and computer terminals. During that same time, we have expanded our information gathering system to include a national data base service which allows us to research questions in a manner far surpassing the capacities of our book collection. Our automated circulation system is called ALIS and our data base is called DIALOG. We want you to satisfy your curiosity by meeting ALIS and talking with DIALOG during National Library Week.

On Monday April 9 from 9:30 a.m. - 5 p.m. an open house at the Bayside Area Library will allow you to visit ALIS with opportunities to discuss the use of the system and see demonstrations of its uses. In addition, the General Reference Bureau of the Information Services Division will conduct demonstrations of the DIALOG data base search capabilities at 11 and 3 p.m. Other activities and further explanation of some of the library's other automated systems are described in a special edition of the Virginia Beach Public Library's UPDATE, available at your local area library. Come to visit us, indulge your curiosity, enjoy National Library Week with us. Curiosity is indeed a wonderful thing.

Pregnancy discussed at oceanfront

Dr. Joan Devine of Virginia Beach General Hospital will present a program entitled "Pregnancy - What to Expect" on Wednesday, April 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the Oceanfront Area Library.

Many aspects of being pregnant will be covered in this program. A question and answer period will follow the lecture. Adults may make their advance registrations by calling the library at 428-4113.

Secrets of the heart

We know Houston lost because everybody was wondering why Michael Young's brother was shot the day before the final game. That was about the same time that Marvin Gaye was shot to death by his father. What's this world coming to? Or, to what is this world coming? What's becoming of this world?

Georgetown won because Patrick Ewing is awesome. The reason he's better than centers like Ralph because he has heart. Patrick is strong, big, healthy, a Jamaica native and likes reggae music. Obviously, a seven-foot basketball player who likes The Wailers and Third World is fine by me.

When John Thompson won the title Monday night, he became the first black coach ever to win a NCAA title. No one ever mentioned the point before the game, but after he won it was the first thing said.

When two evenly matched teams meet, the team which has the most desire to win, the most heart, will usually prevail.

What does this mean? It means that whichever team has the most motivation, and plays their best to win, usually will.

Talent comes cheap.

Heart runs deep. How often have you heard players say, "We won it for the coach?"

They say it all the time.

Because, usually, between the ages of 16 and 22, for guys to play as hard as these guys do to win titles, there has to be a reason. And at that age, the players can't understand how winning may affect them later in life, and don't care. It is up to the coach to, in addition to coaching, educate them.

The first thing John Thompson said after winning the game was that it was important for his boys to receive an education. He didn't say it, but I inferred that he felt that an education for his ballplayers was more important than winning the national title.

And that's true. An education, an analytical mind and objective viewpoint will carry the ballplayers farther in life than a 90% shooting average. A ballplayer who is also interested in academics has the best of both worlds. Few people can handle this role. But for those who do, it's an achievement.

Most people are content to usually be smart or be an athlete. That's fine, but if the two are administered properly they can both feed off each other.

A player smart on the court should also be smart in the class. If he is not, no matter how well he can shoot, he will not see much playing time.

Georgetown won the title with an all black team. They have a black coach. It may mean nothing. It may mean everything. There might have been a unity there, in addition to a nuclear bomb of talent, that might have carried the Hoyas over Phi Slamma Jamma. Only they know. And the secret is in their hearts.

Colangelo is pressing 405 pounds for 12 repetitions to complete his workout.

can lift that 800 or 900 pounds. Psychologically you are telling your body what to do. That's the only way these tremendous weights can be lifted." He comments that conditioning of the mind takes just as long as body conditioning. "But at the same time, your genetic make up will only allow you to go so far," he stated.

Good solid food is a must. Because of genetics, each lifter must establish their own diet. Colangelo's regime consists of carbohydrates and protein. "My policy is carbs before I lift, whether in training or in competition," he began, "and proteins after. Calories are energy and that's what I get from the carbs the energy to lift the weights." The proteins are essential to repair the breakdown of muscle, tendons, etc. during the lifts.

What makes a person strive to build bulging triceps, biceps and the likes? For Colangelo it is his need for self competition. "The whole name of the game is competition," the lifter said. "I realize that many think this body of mine is a bit out of the norm. I am where and what I am because I want to be this way. The competition gives me a great thrill and in winning I have the knowledge of self accomplishment."

According to Colangelo, powerlifters are not normal people -- they have to sacrifice too much. "I sacrifice social life, buying normal size clothes, spend a great deal of money for food, vitamins and training equipment," he said. "But I am happy with myself and in doing what I want to with my life."

At 267 pounds, Colangelo's way of life has proved successful. In addition to his three year run on the state championships, he has claimed victory in the Virginia Open Championships five times and placed second in the Junior Nationals last year. When not in training for a competition or competing (the off season) he switches to body building techniques (which is different than powerlifting). This aids him in adding extra thickness (mass) to his physique and gives him added power.

Colangelo does his own coaching and works out his own training program. He learns new techniques to ask questions of those who are World Class title holders. "Even in this sport, you have to be willing to change your techniques for better ones in order to go higher," he said.

Always striving for that extra few pounds, Colangelo looks forward to being the World Champion some day. After meeting that goal, he'd like to put his training and expertise in the field to good use by owning and managing a gym geared to weight lifting. Maybe even doing a bit of coaching at the same time.

The bands take honors

Students at Virginia Beach high schools take great pride in their school marching bands. Throughout the state and the east coast, Virginia Beach bands annually compete and earn honors in a variety of band festivals.

Three Virginia Beach high school music programs, however, have earned additional honors this year. The concert bands from Green Run, Princess Anne, and Kempsville high schools achieved a rating of Superior in the 1984 Virginia District Concert Band Festival. Combined with the Superior rating earned by those three schools' marching bands in the 1983 Virginia State Marching Band Festival, the three schools' music programs now have the distinction of being a Virginia Honor Band.

The Honor Band Award goes to high school bands which have demonstrated excellence in a total comprehensive instrumental program by receiving a Superior rating in both marching and concert band performances.

This is the third year in a row that the Green Run High band has earned the Honor Band Award, and the second year in a row for Princess Anne High.

Virginia Beach becomes the only city in the state to have three Honor Bands in 1984.

Beach Council Actions

Creech, At-Large; Barbara M. Henley, Pungo; Harold Heischberger, At-Large; H. Jack Jennings, Lynnhaven; Louis R. Jones, Bayside; Robert G. Jones, At-Large; W. H. Kitchin, III, Virginia Beach; Reba S. Meeting Date: April 2, 1984. All members present except Mayor Jones.

Informal Session: 12 noon.

Vice Mayor Henley, presiding in the absence of the mayor, announced that fire stations in the beach will serve as pick-up points for needed items for fire sirens in North Carolina. Thursday noon is the deadline.

Oberndorf recommended a resolution of appreciation be prepared for the promoters of the Norwegian Lady commemoration at the Beach.

City Manager Thomas H. Muehlenbeck announced that the city has received an award in recognition of its cooperation as employers in the programs of the National Guard and Reserve units. Other recipients of the award, presented in Williamsburg Saturday, were Smith and Welton Department Stores and Bassett Furniture.

Jennings suggested the city take steps to impose restrictions on the issuance of industrial revenue bonds before Congress passes a law placing a cap on the total amount of bonds that can be issued. Heischberger suggested that Jennings and Oberndorf discuss the matter with the Economic Development Department.

Kitchin questioned the value of a resolution proposed by R. Jones to establish a resort area advisory commission. Kitchin maintained that Council had an obligation to make the decision on what should be done to improve the Beach Borough.

Executive Session - 1:10 p.m.

Formal Session 2:05 p.m.

Budget

However, with this something-for-everybody budget, chances are that speakers will be few.

The total budget is 14.7 percent higher than the original 1983-84 budget of $292.8 million and 13.5 percent more than the adjusted budget of $295.7 million.

At the same time revenues from local sources are projected to be 16.7 percent greater ($231,336,357) this year over the original Fiscal 1984 budget and 11.2 percent over the revised 1984 estimate.

Combined with the $7.6 million from the undesignated General Fund balance, the current revenue was sufficient to balance the budget--hence no need to increase taxes. The real estate tax rate remains at 80 cents per $100 of fair market value and the personal property rate continues at $6 per $100 of the 50 percent assessment. Any increase property owners notice will be a result of the appreciation in property values, according to Muehlenbeck. The estimated average assessment increase is 5.45 percent and an additional 6.75 percent increase in the real property tax base is anticipated from July. Each cent of the tax rate produces $884,000. Local revenues account for close to 65% of the total budget.

The increase in the property tax base is attributed to the lowering of interest rates providing the city with increased home construction, commercial investment and consumer spending.

Unfinished Business

Baum suggested Council adopt a policy concerning the acquisition of private property for highway construction where the acquisition makes remaining private property values or much less valuable. The matter was referred to the city manager.

New Business

Council voted 9-0 (McCoy was absent) to cancel the May 28 meeting because of the Veterans Day holiday.

Muehlenbeck presented his 1984-85 operating Budget.

Request for permission to advertise Industrial Revenue Bond applications of $7.5 million for Lynnhaven Limited Partnership, and $8 million for the Peppertree II Associates for the Newport News Redevelopment and Housing Authority. Approved 10-0.

Adjournment: 3:30 p.m.

During the last year, Muehlenbeck said, the city experienced unprecedented growth in the construction industry. The number of building permits (17,424) issued in 1983 was the greatest in any year in the city's history. The population, 300,000, is larger than any city in Virginia; and, Muehlenbeck said, the budget, if approved will provide the city and school board staffs the ability to continue the pursuit of excellence in municipal service delivery.

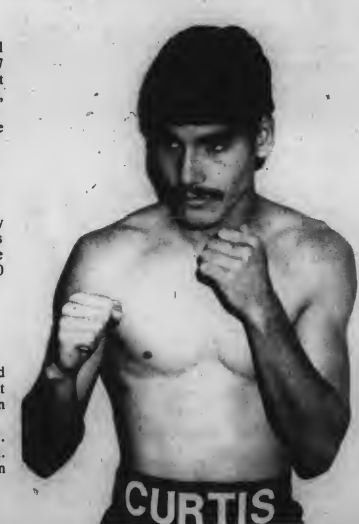

The city also received more revenue than anticipated from the proration of personal property taxes--$2.4 million instead of $1.3 million, and $2.6 million is estimated in the upcoming budget.

The undesignated fund balance will provide $7.6 million to balance the 1985 budget or 7.9 percent of the total budget. After using up the $7.6 million to balance the budget, the fund will still have $26.4 million, a 92.7 percent increase over the July 1, 1983 figure of $13.7 million.

Muehlenbeck said that the sizeable fund came about through the austere budget practices of department heads.

The School Board budget provides an average teacher's salary of $22,656 for 190 days of employment plus about $5,480 fringe benefits and $718 in hospitalization insurance payments.

Included in the city budget are 122 new full-time positions and temporary positions equal to 12 full-time positions. The new positions are needed, he said, because of growth and to enhance present services.

Citywide winners in Virginia Beach then compete against winners in Portsmouth, Chesapeake, Norfolk, Suffolk, and Isle of Wight County for Tidewater District awards. District winners then compete on the State level, and finally, winners in each category at each school level from each state are entered into the National PTA Project.

Virginia Beach's three state first place winners whose talents will be judged nationally later this spring are: Michael Chertok of First Colonial High School, senior high music; Dawn Jones of Green Run High School, senior high art; and Angela Davila of Kemps Landing, intermediate art.

Katherine Schoenhoff of Bayside Junior High School placed second in statewide junior high music competition; Anne Byrd of Princess Anne High School placed third in statewide literature competition; and Lisa Binetti of Holland Elementary School placed third in statewide primary music.

In District competition, Sarah Gambito of Brookwood Elementary School in Virginia Beach placed first in intermediate literature; she did not place in the top three in the statewide project.

Farm, Lawn & Garden

Select plants that will thrive in containers

Planting flowers and foliage in containers is an effective way to decorate the landscape around some parts of a home. But consider the size and locations of the containers as well as appearance and design, when picking out the plants, said a Virginia Tech Extension specialist.

Planters or window boxes which are to be viewed from one side, should have taller plants at the back with lower plants at the ends. Trailing plants such as verbena and ivy can be planted along the edge to hang over the sides, suggested the specialist, James A. Faiszt.

"If the location faces north, or has considerable shade, select foliage plants of flowering plants which typically grow in subdued light," he said. Some of the best are wax or tuberous begonia, coleus, impatiens, fuchsia, viola, pansy and vinca.

Cacti or succulent plants may be selected for a hot sunny location. Dwarf citrus trees, small shrubs, or large foliage plants will do well in tubs or large crocks on the terrace, deck or walkway. "If a tender species is selected, move it to an enclosed porch or home greenhouse for the winter," said Faiszt.

Containers or planters which are to remain outdoors during the winter should be planted with hardy shrubs. The faculty member in Tech's College of Agriculture and Life Sciences faculty added that gardeners should be sure that the soil in these containers has adequate moisture during the winter to avoid drying out and browning of the foliage.

Guideline for garden sites

Gardeners don't need a large site, but they do need a good location when placing their garden.

"Here are some guidelines for deciding where a new garden should be placed," said Virginia Tech Extension horticulturist, Diane Relif.

— Choose a level site that has loose, well-drained soil. Ideally, the site should get eight to 10 hours of sun, but vegetables will still grow well if they get at least six hours of sun.

— Locate it near a good supply of water if possible.

— Choose a spot near the living quarters, so it is convenient to work in it for short periods of time.

— Avoid placing the garden in low spots at the base of a hill or at the foot of a slope bordered by a solid fence. Such areas are slow to warm up in the spring and frost settles in these places because of a lack of air drainage.

— Avoid windy locations.

— Avoid planting near trees and shrubs. They compete for nutrients and water.

— Plan the garden plot so that tall crops are on the north side of the garden. Then they won't shade the shorter vegetables.

— Group plants by length of growing period.

The Lighter Side

A simple dessert pleasure

Discover joys of baking and entertaining by expressing one's individuality. Pastry Petal Cups are simple to prepare, they offer aesthetic interest and have the subtle taste of natural Cheddar cheese. These pastries are designed into petals and can be filled with fresh fruits.

Pastry Petal Cups offer the opportunity to be both simple and elaborate, straightforward and imaginative. People appreciate the individual effort that is involved in preparing pastry, the selection of fresh, wonderful berries and the final touch of whipped cream. The pastry is made easy because there is no rolling, no fitting into a pie pan or individual tart molds. Instead, the pastry is rolled into a log and sliced. Six slices are used to make a petal design in a muffin pan.

This dessert fare depends not on pomp or show; but on the natural goodness of a cheese pastry and an artistic touch of selecting and slicing nature's most beautiful fruits.

This dessert pleasure is expressive of your personality and satisfying to your taste.

Pastry Petal Cups

- 1 c. all-purpose flour
1/3 c. (1 1/3 oz.) shredded
LAND O LAKES®
Natural Cheddar Cheese
- 1/3 c. LAND O LAKES®
Sweet Cream Butter
3 tbsp. cold water

In small mixer bowl combine flour, cheese and butter. Beat at med. speed until mixture forms coarse crumbs. Add water; continue beating at low speed until mixture forms a ball. Form into 12" roll. Wrap in waxed paper; chill until firm (2 hr. or overnight). Heat oven to 400°. Cut log into 1/8" thick slices. Grease and flour a 12 c. muffin pan. To form each cup: place 1 slice in bottom of each cup. Place 5 slices around sides of cup, overlapping slightly; press edges into bottom slice to seal. Bake for 12 to 18 min. or until lightly browned. Cool 10 min.; remove from pan. YIELD: 12 pastry cups.

Meat tenderizer stops poison ivy burn

Painting - Use fast drying glue to stick an ordinary paper plate to the bottom of the paint can. No more drips on floor or carpet.

The Hint Man

Patent On Clothing - After cutting out the patch to the required size, dip it in cold water. Flatten it out on the material, then sew it on. It won't have that wrinkled look when it is dry.

Patent Leather, Cleaning - Rub the patent leather with a soft piece of cloth lightly dampened with nail polish remover. Wipe it dry immediately. Apply a thin coating of Vaseline and polish briskly.

Pineapple, Growing Indoors - The top of a fresh pineapple, planted in a glass container with just enough tepid water to cover the bottom, about three fourths of a pint, will soon sprout and take root. Keep it in a warm, open area (near a window, perhaps) for best results. Note: Gently twist the crown out; don't cut it out.

Pins, Keeping Them Sharp - Instead of laying them flat in a tin, stick them in a bar of toilet soap. It lubricates them, keeps them pointed, and makes them much easier to use.

Plastic Odors, Removing - Soak the item overnight in equal parts of cold water and white vinegar. This will keep them soft as well, whether they're tablecloths, curtains, or placemats. Rinse them well the next morning.

Plastic Shower Curtains, Cleaning - Put curtains into the washer with two large beach towels, then add half a cup of detergent and half a cup of baking soda. Fill the machine with warm water and run through the entire washing cycle. Add one cup of white vinegar to the final rinse water.

Note: Do not spin dry. If possible, hang them out in the open air.

Poison Ivy - Gently rub meat tenderizer directly onto the affected area to stop the burning.

Mandrell to open concert series at 'Old Country'

Country music superstar Barbara Mandrell will be in concert at Busch Gardens, The Old Country on Sunday, April 15.

Mandrell's performance, the first of the park's spring series, will be presented at the Royal Palace Concert Theatre, located in the France section of Busch Gardens.

Born in Houston and raised in Oceanside, California, Mandrell began playing the pedal steel guitar professionally at age 11. In her teens, she performed in a family band with her parents, learning to play banjo, guitar, bass and saxophone.

In 1968, singing began to dominate Mandrell's career. She quickly gained a recording contract and became a member of the Grand Ole Opry in 1972. In 1980, she landed an NBC variety series with her sisters which lasted two years.

Today her records are consistently found at the top of the country charts. She is a two-time County Music Association Entertainer of the Year and recent recipient of the People's Choice award for most popular female entertainer.

A self-admitted extrovert, Barbara reveres the feeling of being on stage and believes in giving her fans 100 percent during each concert she performs.

In addition to Mandrell's performances April 15, Busch Gardens, The Old Country will feature live concerts by celebrity entertainers throughout the spring/summer concert season.

Busch Gardens' single admission price of $13.95 per person includes all rides, regularly scheduled park shows, in-park transportation and attractions (a nominal fee is charged for concerts and arcade games).

Reserved concert seating ticket to the Barbara Mandrell concert are $4. Concert tickets may be obtained up to 30 days in advance at the park during operating hours at a special ticket booth located in the France section. Reserved concert tickets are also available at the Coliseum Mall in Hampton. To order by mail, send check or credit card number and expiration date to Busch Gardens Concert Ticketing, P.O. Drawer F.C., Williamsburg, VA 23187.

Busch Gardens, The Old Country is open weekdays only from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. from March 31 through May 11, when daily operation begins.

Real Estate News

By Roger G. Pyle

A soon-to-be-released, nationwide survey of real-estate values documents the rebound that homeowners and small-scale investors have been anticipating for months.

In more than 80 percent of the country's top 120 real-estate markets, according to the study, home resale values have moved up in the past six months — often faster than the rate of inflation — or have held their own, despite high interest rates.

Barely 24 months ago, by contrast, the national pattern for home real estate was the grim reverse: Inflation-adjusted resale values were dropping fast, and the equity holdings of millions of American home owners were shrinking.

The comprehensive market study, known as the Home Price Comparison Index, was conducted by Nationwide Relocation Services, Inc.

Scheduled for publication at the end of March, the study analyzes relative home values and price changes that have occurred in bellwether housing markets coast-to-coast since last June.

The index uses a standardized 2,000 square-foot, single-family home with three bedrooms, two baths and garage in "midlevel executive" neighborhoods within each metropolitan area.

The neighborhoods surveyed are generally in the suburbs rather than the central city, the homes sit on average-sized lots, and the financing involves no special subsidies or gimmicks.

The Home Price Comparison Index shows, for example, that the same house and lot that sold in January for $64,000 in Fort Wayne, Ind., would go this weekend for $80,000 in Cincinnati, $93,000 in suburban Chicago, $97,000 in Atlanta, $100,000 in Denver, $104,000 outside of Philadelphia, $108,000 in suburban Miami, $110,000 in Seattle, $135,000 near Washington, D.C., $149,000 in Dallas, $225,000 in suburban San Francisco, and a sobering $425,000 in the posh Brentwood section of Los Angeles.

More important for homeowners, the comparison in index also tracks short-term price movements market by market, roughly once every 180 days. It's in this category that the survey has turned up such encouraging news this spring. Values in virtually every region of the country are trending upward, the first strong showing in several years.

Enterprise zones eyed

The Senate Finance Committee has included provisions for enterprise zones in its deficit reduction package.

Enterprise zones are a bold and creative approach to create jobs and business activity. They are a free market solution relying on individual initiative and private enterprise.

The key is to reduce tax and regulatory burdens which stand in the way of entrepreneurial activity. By reducing these burdens we can create a climate that encourages investment and growth.

Areas with high rates of unemployment, low incomes and declining population will be eligible for designation. The areas would be nominated by state and local governments who would be actively involved in the formation of plans to provide tax and regulatory relief.

Rural as well as urban areas will be eligible for this program. This should be a real help to Virginia. The General Assembly has already enacted legislation which would allow Virginia localities to participate in this program. So, we should be in a good position when this measure is enacted into law.

Orchid show set

The Tidewater Orchid Society (TOS) will host its sixth orchid show, entitled "Oriental Splendor," at the Norfolk Botanical Gardens auditorium April 7 and 8, 1984.

Public Health

By James Foster Crosby, M.D.

Pets and childhood diarrhea

Most doctors, when treating a child for diarrhea, ask if there are pets in the home—particularly hamsters, ferrets, or puppies—because these animals can shed Camphylobacter jejuni, an organism that has been linked to moderate to severe diarrhea in humans.

James G. Fox, DVM, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's division of comparative medicine, finds that the organism was isolated in 24 of 30 golden Syrian hamsters purchased from six pet stores in the Boston area.

Puppies obtained from pounds or shelters are also likely to carry the organism, and should be taken to a veterinarian and examined.

The pet may show no signs of illness itself but still shed the organism.

Three to ski

By Mike Byron

It takes two to tango, but three to ski...

When water skiing you need a person, a line tender, whose only job is to watch the skier. This leaves the helmsman free to operate the boat on a safe course while keeping a good lookout forward and avoid other boats, docks, moorings, debris, fishermen and swimming areas. Flotilla 53, U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary reminds you that it takes three to ski.

From Cookies to Computers... Small Business Means

Small businesses are putting America to work. Since 1980, nearly all of the new jobs in this country—more than 2.5 million—have been created by small firms. Healthy, growing small businesses will mean even more jobs for a working America, and a brighter economic future for this country.

So to the butcher, the baker, and the floppy disc maker, we say, "Good for you, small business... you're doing a great job for us all!"

Crabmeat casserole for the returning commander

By Greg Goldfarb
Editor

It's hard to condense 16 years of marriage into a few paragraphs. But if it can be done, it might come out like this:

Mike and Mary Currie have been married for 16 years. He is a 1962 graduate of Virginia Beach High School. She is a former five-year teacher at Green Run Elementary School.

Mike has been an officer in the Navy, following a year at the University of Virginia and four years at the Naval Academy, since 1967 when he was commissioned as an ensign. In 1980 he became a commander.

Before last Tuesday, when Mike and his Thunderbolts returned to NAS Oceana, Mike and Mary hadn't seen each other since Christmas when she traveled to Haifa, Israel, meeting him for a four-day vacation. During Mike's 17 years in the Navy, Mary has also met him in such places as Spain and Italy.

Tuesday, Mike came home to Virginia Beach.

Mike Currie returns after Grenada, Beirut combat operations

Mary arrived at the Oceana hangar a good hour before the Attack Squadron VA-176, nicknamed the Thunderbolts, stationed aboard the USS Independence, arrived. Mike is the Thunderbolts' commanding officer. Mary has waited six times for Mike to return from the sea.

In 1964, 1970, 1976, 1982 and 1983 Mike was deployed to the Mediterranean. In 1980 he went to the Indian Ocean. Also in 1983 Mike went to Grenada.

When Mike returned to his Lynnhaven home this time, his welcome home dinner consisted of crabmeat casserole, artichokes, spinach salad and Key lime pie. The couple sipped California wine.

During Currie's most recent deployment, which began Oct. 18, 1983 in Norfolk, Currie's ship was dispatched to the Caribbean island-nation of Grenada.

"During joint-service operations the VA-176 flew around-the-clock close air support missions to cover the successful evacuation of the American medical students," Commander Currie said.

"Our next assignment was the east Med off the coast of battered Beirut," Currie continued, "where we operated for nearly four months. Days after our arrival, proven aircrews became part of the massive air strike into Lebanon on Dec. 4 in which five squadron aircraft accurately delivered ordinance on extremely heavily defended enemy positions. This was done in response to continued threats to the safety of U.S. components in the Multinational Peacekeeping Force."

In March the Indy steamed north to participate in "Teamwork '84" which was a NATO exercise billed as one of the largest naval exercises since World War II. The event took place near the Arctic Circle.

When Mike returned to his home, he was met by Rob, the Currie's 12-year-old Irish Setter.

"And the dog smiles," when Mike returns, Mary said.

Mary says it's not easy sleeping sometimes, waiting for Mike to return. But she says she tries not to worry about him too much while he's away, and also tries to keep very busy. She understands Mike's devotion to his job.

"He likes to fly and he likes working with and leading people," Mary said.

Mary says she has no fear that Mike will return home affected by the combat missions, the first of the U.S. since Viet Nam.

"No I don't expect a change in him from the combat experience," Mary said, but added that there is a transition period after Mike arrives home to which they both have to become accustomed.

Mary said that she expects Mike to be home now for about 36 months. They plan to travel.

Politics heating up at city hall

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

It's politics -- but not as usual -- at city hall.

It's before election politics which makes incumbent candidates and incumbents supporting these or other candidates wary about actions they might take which will be fresh in the minds of the populace when they go to the polls.

That's why, as Council considered one request for deferral Councilwoman Reba McClanan snapped, "We're deferring everything else until after the election."

McClanan is in the enviable position of running unopposed in the May 1 councilmanic election in Virginia Beach. In reference to another request for deferral, she termed a "delaying tactic" a move to reschedule the application until after the election.

Starting the discourse was a letter from W.P. Thomas, president of the Witchduck Landing Civic League and representing that league and the Aragona Village residents. The residents are opposing an application for rezoning by John G. and Mary Williams for 25 acres in Bayshore from R-5 Residential to A-1 Apartments. The Planning Department and the Planning Commission both recommended denial. The applicant, whose attorney is Grover Wright, requested a deferral from the scheduled April 23rd meeting which is at night, because they were going to be out of the country on that date.

Thomas states in the letter that he suspects this request is a tactic to discourage the community's efforts to be heard on the issue. April 23 is a night meeting. He said the change would work a hardship on the volunteers. He says the residents wanted the matter resolved before the election.

Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorf who is running for reelection for one of the two at-large seats with six other candidates, brought up the request pointing out that the residents report that the applicants were not present at the Planning Commission meeting and that

Lighting, heating the new library

When the Central Library of Virginia Beach opens during the latter half of 1986 it will be one of the largest structures in the region that uses solar energy for heating, cooling and lighting.

Architect Laszlo Aranyi, at an informal session of City Council Monday morning, presented plans and a model of the $5.3 million building which will be constructed on a seven-acre site on Virginia Beach Boulevard between Willis Wayside and Loehmann's Plaza.

The building is designed with a passive solar system to collect and store the sun's radiant energy and will, Aranyi said, make it one of the largest structures in the region that uses solar energy for heating, cooling and lighting.

With the building oriented true south, Aranyi said that utility consumption will be reduced 50 percent over conventional construction. Building orientation, insulation, building color and architectural features will permit heat gain in the winter and exclude the sun in summer.

A two-story building containing 88,500 square feet, the structure has the appearance of being many-storied. The design is clean and striking.

Thermal mass is provided to store and gradually release the sun's radiant energy in floors and walls of some material such as concrete, stone, quarry tile or brick.

Light is obtained by orientation and architectural features such as skylights, courtyards, clerestory windows, angled and reflective window ledges that will admit natural day light and direct it overhead to most areas within the building.

Overhangs will shade the interior from high-angled summer sun, but in winter will allow the sun to enter for heating the building.

Marcy Sims, Library Director, said that the building meets all the objectives of the library staff -- operational efficiency, functional efficiency and flexibility to accommodate new technologies when they emerge.

Riding

They weren't positively thrilled about the activity, but they did it and they had fun.

Following last winter's Oceanfront Loop Bikeway dedication ceremonies held at the Maritime Museum at 24th Street and the boardwalk, Mayor Louis Jones and City Manager Thomas Muehlenbeck christened the 29-mile bikeway by jumping on beach cruisers and taking off.

They peddled north a few blocks, a biting wind nipping at their coat-tails, turned around and began heading back towards the cheering crowd.

With less than a block to go Jones decided to punch it, and with elbows and ankles flying high, raced past the good-humored Muehlenbeck.

It was a lot of fun.

In less than two years after coming on board, Muehlenbeck is riding comfortably at City Hall. He has taken the time to learn about the city, and its politics, before announcing a major structural change in the municipal government.

Muehlenbeck's predecessor, George Hanbury, was a competent manager but with a style distinctly different from Muehlenbeck. Hanbury, as an example of his character, would not have let the mayor pass him on the bike path. Hanbury was a take-charge guy, who didn't confer enough with city officials about city business. Hanbury, who had some supporters, made decisions and initiated discussion first, then consulted council members. This behavior ultimately led to his dismissal.

Muehlenbeck certainly noticed that Hanbury's way of doing business in Virginia Beach was not the way officials wanted it. And, being the smart man he is, Muehlenbeck is structuring the city government to provide city officials what they want: more information and facts upon which they may make their own decisions.

It's yet to be seen how the changes will actually affect the city's efficiency and productivity output, but usually most changes are for the better. And we must change to progress.

Mercy

Euthanasia. Karen Ann Quinlan. Colorado Governor Richard D. Lamm.

Lamm had all these things—mercy killing, irreversible comas, his governorship—on his mind recently when he was quoted as saying the terminally ill elderly people have "a duty to die and get out of the way."

As it has been publicly noted, Lamm's out-of-context remark was intended to call attention to the troublesome health care for the elderly issue. The trouble is, many seniors need medical attention but there is not always enough money to provide it.

Lamm is entitled to his own opinion, of course, but there are two points worth making.

Why did Lamm, and subsequent press reports, state that only terminally ill elderly people have the duty to die? Surely he did not mean that younger terminally ill people have a right to lengthen their state of living by artificial means and older people don't.

Beach Council Actions

The following is a list of some of the actions taken by Virginia Beach City Council at its most recent meeting. Council members are: John A. Baum, Blackwater Borough; Nancy A. Creech, At-Large; Barbara M. Henley, Pungo; Harold Hirschberger, At-Large; H. Jack Jennings, Lynnhaven; Louis R. Jones, Bayside; Robert G. Jones, At-Large; W. H. Kitchen, III, Virginia Beach; Reba S. McClannan, Princess Anne; J. Henry McCoy, Jr., Kempsville; and Meyera Oberndorf, At-Large. The City Manager is Thomas Muehlenbeck. City Attorney is Dale Bimston.

Meeting Date: April 9, 1984. All members present except R. Jones.

Informal Session 11:30 a.m.

Henley reported on the "fantastic" staff work of the city staff, headed by Lee Eskey, Office of Emergency Services in carrying out the three-day operation to get assistance to tornado victims in North Carolina. She said that 22,300 pounds of necessities and some checks were collected during the drive. She also thanked the media, the Public Information Office, the citizens who responded, the traffic engineering department in charge of the pick up and Brooks Transfer which furnished a van.

Kitchen reported that after meeting with R. Jones he found that their goals were alike, but that their methods differed in respect to improving the beach tourist area. He suggested using the city's Research and Advisory Board to consider all areas involved in the tourist industry, rather than a task force appointed by council. Kitchen voted last week against appointment of a similar committee to study ways to improve the resort, suggested by Jones and approved by a vote of 8-2. Kitchen and Baum dissenting; Mayor Jones was absent.

Marcy Sims, library director, and Lazlo Aranyi, architect for the new central library, presented plans for the new structure.

Mayor Jones announced a meeting April 12 at 6 p.m. of Council members with Betty Diener, State secretary of Commerce and Industry to discuss the fence which controls access to False Cape State Park from North Carolina.

A shift in garbage collections from Thursday to Tuesday was announced for the area off of General Booth Boulevard between Rudee Inlet and Nimmo Church.

City Manager Thomas H. Muehlenbeck announced the interim appointment of Carl Thoren, Public Works as director of the Community Development Department until a new director is appointed.

Muehlenbeck announced a luncheon meeting on May 9 of the Council and local state legislators at the Pavilion.

Muehlenbeck announced the informal session of Council will begin at 10:30 a.m. next Monday.

Executive Session 12:30 p.m.

Getting Sue's goat

By Greg Glassner

Although spring can be a lovely time of year, with flowers blooming and gentle warm breezes to lift the spirit and lop years off the average human's burden of cares and woes, this spring promises to be less care-free for me.

For one thing, grass grows in the spring. And growing grass has to be mowed.

For the past six years this has been no problem. My landlady, a princess of a woman, has freely let her two renters use her lawnmower.

On the last mow of last autumn, however, the little Briggs & Stratton motor came loose from the chassis. Since the bolts holding it down had been tapped into a plastic chassis, I'm afraid that little mower has seen its day.

In any event, it isn't ready right now, and I noticed that the grass isn't lagging far behind the spring onions, which are about six inches tall, already.

Besides, I'm currently engaged in some seemingly endless negotiations to purchase a house in a rural section of Chesapeake. When consummated, if ever, these negotiations will spell the end of my free-loading days, as far as lawnmowers are concerned.

Being almost as resourceful as I am parsimonious, my first instincts were to avoid cutting the lawn in some way.

My new abode is zoned "agricultural," thought I. Why not acquire some sort of animal to take care of those worrisome yard chores?

A friend of mine, whose brother runs a local farm, offered to give me a small pig as a housewarming gift.

But pigs aren't much on yard work, and, although I have lived in a few sites myself, I'm not sure if the new neighbors would approve.

Anyway the pig went out the window the other day when Brewer Moore was in the office. Brewer works for the Zoning Board and after he picked himself off the office carpet, he frostily informed me that "agricultural zoning or no agricultural zoning," pigs is verboten.

Rabbits tend to get out of hand I'd hate to turn Chesapeake's green pastures into a facsimile of Western Australia. "What about a goat?" I asked out loud while walking through the newspaper composing room? "Goats eat grass."

Sue, our even-tempered typesetter put the lid on that idea.

She says she once borrowed one of her brother-in-law's goats to

Respect for the elderly

People, young or old, have the right to live. And that's the second point.

Who is Lamm, or anybody for that matter, to play God and decide who, or what group of people are ready and should die? This question is strictly one which should be left to family members. They are the ones who must decide what life saving measures should be enlisted to save a life. The only problem is when it comes to people for whom there are no surviving family members to make a decision. Then, the decision must be a medical one, based on the projected quality of life for the patient.

Governor Lamm should not take it upon himself to make decisions for thousands of people and families in the U.S.

If his intent is to call for some objective analysis of the health care system in regards to terminally ill patients, regardless of age, he should learn how to say what he means and mean what he says.

Well, the goat followed her daughter to the school bus stop, was promptly "arrested" by the police and she wound up having to bail it out of the animal shelter.

When all the time and money was figured in, she says she could have hired a landscaping firm to handle the weed problem.

Well, maybe not a goat.

I wonder if any local pet stores handle Venezuelan capybaras? I bet one of them could eat a half-acre of grass every two weeks.

The Junior Virginia Beach Garden Club's 4th Annual Spring Flower Sale will benefit the Virginia Museum of Marine Sciences. The Flower Sale is April 17 from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the Hilton Conference Center at 8th and Atlantic Ave. The Garden Club is expanding the scope of the show and sale this year and is, for the first time, holding it at a public center.

Ann Wright, co-chairman of this year's flower sale, said that Verne Burlage, owner of the Hilton, donated the Conference Center to the group.

Mac Rawls, Museum Director, said he is grateful for the group's offer to designate the Museum as the recipient of the show's proceeds.

The mall will open at six a.m. and worship service will begin at 6:30.

"The indoor service will enable many handicapped and elderly Virginia Beach citizens to attend a sunrise service," according to VOA Tidewater branch executive director, Fredrick H. Hodges, an ordained minister who will officiate at the service.

"In the past," Hodges said, "cold weather and inclement conditions prevented those citizens from attending because most area sunrise services have been conducted outdoors."

Hodges added that a coffee and breakfast buffet will be available immediately following the service at the mall's Picadilly Restaurant, located just west of the center court area.

Brookwood scholarships offered

The Brookwood Elementary School PTA is sponsoring three scholarships for any Virginia Beach High School senior who attended Brookwood at least one year.

Postal business may be conducted outdoors

Virginia Beach residents may conduct postal business outdoors this spring, Postmaster Joseph N. Campbell of the Virginia Beach Post Office said.

"Our rural delivery vehicles function as post offices-on-wheels," explained Campbell. "As rural customers catch 'spring fever,' we'll be there to serve them."

Rural carrier services include stamp and money order sales, parcel pickup, registered and Express Mail. Business transactions are completed on-the-spot, a delivery stops along each route.

"These 'open-air post offices' are a world apart from their city counterparts," said Campbell, "yet they bring a wide range of postal services right to your door."

"Rural delivery developed a personal touch in its early days," he said, "bringing families food, newspaper, tobacco, dry goods, and items that were otherwise difficult to get."

"Today, for some older residents who live in secluded areas, rural carriers serve as a lifeline to the outside world, bringing food to shut-ins during emergencies or alerting the telephone company when a storm interrupts service."

Pie Crust - Pie dough is much easier to handle and place the lower crust in the pan flat and smooth, with

Pie Crust, Soggy - Sprinkle powdered sugar on the crust before baking to avoid a soggy pie crust.

Or brush a well beaten egg yolk over the top crust to give it a lovely glaze.

the bottom crust is soggy, next time brush the bottom crust with the white of an egg.

Polishing Cloth, Making Your Own - Soak a white cloth in kerosene, then hang it out in the open air to dry. The cloth is very good for polishing varnished surfaces, chrome, venetian blinds, and glass.

Note: The cloth will last for weeks before needing another soaking.

Porcelain, Cleaning - One of the easiest methods is to sprinkle a piece of flannel with household salt, then rub. It usually works like a charm.

Porcelain, Removing Yellow Stains - Make a paste of crushed chalk, preferably white, and ammonia. Apply to the stain and scour with a stiff cloth of small brush. Allow to dry, then rinse off.

If porcelain on a pot or pan is burnt, try rubbing it with toothpaste. A good scouring with the fingertips usually removes most burnt spots.

Potatoes, Baking - To bake potatoes twice as fast, boil them in salted water for ten minutes before placing them in the oven.

Or soak them in cold, salted water for twenty minutes before baking.

Pajama Cord, Replacing - Fasten a medium-sized safety pin to one end of the new pajama cord. Work the pin between the fingers and the material will slip over the pin as you push it through.

Whitworth, Stephenson compete in UVB Golf Classic

Kathy Whitworth and Jan Stephenson, two of the LPGA's all-time greats, will join more than 100 pros who will compete for $175,000 in prize money at the 6th annual United Virginia Bank Golf Classic to be held May 8-13 at Portsmouth Sleepy Hole Golf Course.

Stephenson and Whitworth, defending champion Lenore Muraoka, along with Alice Miller, Stephanie Farwig, Laura Baugh Cole, Janet Coles, Myra Van Hoose, Jerilyn Britz and Kathy Postlewait, are only a few of the pros who will participate in this year's event. Tournament Chairman Nancy Wren announced today.

"We're delighted that both Kathy and Jan have signed up for our 1984 tournament," Wren said. "Their presence at Sleepy Hole next month is bound to generate plenty of excitement during the 54-hole event," she said.

Stephenson and Whitworth are perhaps the two most popular pros on the LPGA Tour today.

One of the most successful and heralded golfers in LPGA history, Whitworth celebrated her 25th year on the pro golf circuit last year. All-time titleholder with 84 career wins, Whitworth has been the leading money winner 7 times, the Player-of-the-Year 8 times, and was the first player to reach the $1 million mark in career earnings. A member of the LPGA Hall of Fame, Whitworth marked her quarter-century on the Tour in 1983 by sinking a 40-foot putt on the 72nd hole to take the title at the Women's Kemper Open.

During her 9 years on the LPGA Tour, Jan Stephenson has captured 12 tournament victories and amassed nearly $900,000 in prize money. Currently ranked 15th on this year's money list, the native Australian who now lives in Texas is known for her victories at such prestigious events as the Peter Jackson Classic (1981), the LPGA Championship

Jan Stephenson takes a shot.

(1982) and the U.S. Women's Open (1983). Stephenson has played in every UVB event since the tournament's inception in 1979.

Lenore Muraoka, the peppy Hawaiian native who won the UVB Golf Classic last year as her first on the Tour, will again play this year along-side Alice Miller and Stephanie Farwig, both of whom carded a 54-hole total of 215 to tie for second place in the 1983 event. Muraoka, Miller and Farwig symbolize the emergence of a group of younger players in women's pro golf who are becoming an important force.

Miller, who joined the Tour just 5 years ago, quickly fought her way into the top ten. This year, she won the Sarasota Classic, and is currently ranked 6th on the 1984 money list.

Farwig's second-place tie at Sleepy Hole last year matched her best showing ever on Tour. The 1983 Rookie-of-the-Year, Farwig finished in a tenth-place deadlock at the U.S. Women's Open in 1982.

Jerilyn Britz, Janet Coles, Kathy Postlewait and Myra Van Hoose have all participated in the UVB Golf Classic in the past. Britz in best known for her 1979 victory at the U.S. Women's Open, while Van Hoose was 1980 Rookie-of-the-Year. Laura Baugh Cole, who is making her debut at the UVB event this year, has earned more than a quarter-million dollars on the LPGA Tour, as have Coles and Postlewait.

The 1984 UVB Golf Classic is being played at Sleepy Hole for the fourth consecutive year, and features the one-day Planters Pro Am on Thursday, May 10. Official tournament play begins on Friday, May 11, with the final round and awards ceremonies on Sunday, May 13.

Tickets may be obtained in advance at any UVB branch in Tidewater. A good-any-day ticket is $7. A weekly badge providing admission to the clubhouse and grounds is $25. Daily tickets will go on sale at Sleepy Hole beginning Thursday, May 10.

For further information, call the tournament office at 804-858-3043. Proceeds from the 1984 UVB Golf Classic go to the Portsmouth Service League for the benefit of area charities.

Who says driving a tractor isn't woman's work?

By Susan Sneed
Driving an industrial tractor isn't women's work say some. Linda Sutcliffe, a Virginia Beach resident, changed that when she came to the transportation department at NARF three and one half years ago. She is an industrial tractor operator. She came here in a training program called TAPER that lasted for three years.

"There were a lot of adjustments to be made," Linda said. There were people outside transportation that felt a woman couldn't cut it—couldn't do the job."

"Within transportation, people were co-operative and had a wait and see attitude. When they saw I was willing to try it and go for it and when they saw that I could do it, they accepted me."

"It's hard work. A lot of people think it's really easy. I have to deal with people, their moods and attitudes. I get guff from people because they have to put it off on someone."

"People have learned to accept that I'm here. The people in transportation helped me cope with a lot of things. They felt I could adjust to anything, do anything. They were and are very supportive and believe in me. Basically they are real good guys. I've enjoyed working with everybody in NARF. They've been really good to me."

"I don't think the people in transportation get the respect or recognition they deserve. They do a lot of hard work. Through rain and sleet and cold they are there."

"I felt like I was a pioneer—opening the door for other women working towards the goal of integrating women. Not every woman can do it. A lot of women don't like working outdoors and having to deal with the challenges. But I like it. I get a lot of fresh air, and meet people from all walks of life. I have had women say to me that they wouldn't do it."

Linda has learned "all phases of transportation—tractors, flatbeds, fork lifts and dispatching. Presently she is primarily moving aircraft parts and components from one place to another."

"I feel I have set a good example for other women. The issue of whether or not a woman can do this particular job no longer exists because I am doing it," Linda said. Presently, Linda is the only woman in the transportation department.

Linda rode the NARF float the first year that she worked at NARF. She's also been involved in doing exhibits for family day. Another one of Linda's involvements here at NARF is the Hispanic committee.

She came to apply at NARF because she met Clarence Russell, Employment Development Specialist, while she was working at a furniture store. Linda says Clarence was a Godsend. (Clarence is a minister and Linda enjoys talking about God.)

He encouraged her to come and work at NARF. Linda said, "One day I just got fed up with it (her previous job) and applied for a training position at NARF. I knew it would be a challenge but I'm no stranger to hard work anyway. I didn't get special treatment as a woman. They treated me as an equal. But then it's always a two-way street. They had to put up with me and I had to put up with them."

The spring and fall create the best working conditions for the transportation people. Winters aren't too bad because the cabs are heated. Summers are another story. There's no air conditioning and Linda says it's necessary to keep moving and not stop for too long.

Linda added, "NARF transportation department people are professionals and as such people demand a lot from us because we are professionals. If we run a red light it would be a lot harder on us than it would be for someone else. We have to stay extra alert all the time."

Linda Sutcliffe is one of the people at the Naval Air Rework Facility who makes things happen.

$1,000 reward

Armed robbery at Hilltop

A reward of up to $1,000 is being offered by Virginia Beach Crime Solvers for information that leads to the arrest of the men responsible for a Dec. 20, 1983 armed robbery at Hilltop Plaza Shopping Center.

On that Tuesday at 10:35 p.m., the store manager of the Safeway store at 553 Hilltop Plaza closed the store and locked the door while several employees waited.

As they started to leave, a man jumped out of a white Chevrolet van and, pointing a handgun, forced them back inside. After walking to the office, everyone was made to lay on the floor except the manager, who was forced to open the store safe. After taking the money, the robber ran out the front door and left in the van.

A short time later, the van was seen going west on Shore Drive but the robber and an accomplice abandoned the van at Gate 2 of Little Creek base. The van had been stolen from the Naval Air Rework Facility (NARF) on N.O.B., Norfolk.

The robber is a 25-30 year old, light skinned black male, 5'6" tall with a medium build. He had short military-styled hair, mustache, and spoke with a Spanish accent. He wore a blue jacket and dark colored baseball hat.

Anyone who has information about this or any other robberies is asked to call Crime Solvers at 427-0000. Crime Solvers also pays cash for information about any crime committed in Virginia Beach. Callers are never asked to give their name or testify in court.

Two Beach recipients Wake scholarships awarded

Two high school seniors from Virginia Beach, have been awarded Guy T. Carswell Scholarships at Wake Forest University.

They are Kimberly Christine Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Ward Clark Jr. of 2108 Trawler Ct., and Bradford Richard Lenox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Lenox of 5344 Sir Barton Dr.

Clark attends Frank W. Cox High School and Lenox is a student at Memsieville High School.

They are among 56 Carswell Scholarship winners announced by William G. Stalling, director of admissions and financial aid.

Carswell Scholars are selected for their qualities of intellect and leadership. The scholarships range in four-year value from $10,000 to $36,000 and are one of the University's two most prestigious scholarships.

The scholarships were established in 1968 and are named in honor of the late Guy T. Carswell and his wife, Mrs. Clara Carswell of Charlotte. They are based on a bequest of more than $1.5 million left to the university by Carswell, a Charlotte lawyer who was a graduate of Wake Forest and its law school.

Clark is co-editor of her school's literary magazine and a National Merit Scholarship Semi-Finalist. She is a member of South Hampton Roads Scholastic Team, French Club, Fine Arts Club, Inter Club Council and Teenage Republicans. She was voted the most likely to succeed. Lennox is a member of the National Honor Society and attended the 1983 Virginia Governor's School for the Gifted. He is team captain for his school's debate team and has won awards in district, region and state competitions.

He is active in student government and serves as chairman of the credentials committee. He was head delegate for his school's Model United Nations which won the Secretary General Award for Best Delegation at the Old Dominion University Model United Nations.

Lenox is president of the International Club and a member of the German and forensics clubs.

their attorney would be present at the City Council meeting.

McClanahan referred to the change as "delaying tactics" to put off the vote until after the election.

The idea is not that Council members would vote differently before and after the election, but that voters are less likely to remember how they voted two or four years later than they are two weeks later.

Oberdorf said that there were "well-meaning" people on both sides.

Mayor Louis R. Jones agreed with this last statement and asked City Attorney Dale Binson whether the city would be in a better position legally if the application were denied at a later meeting, according to the request of the applicant, than it would be if it denied the request.

Binson said it would. He also said that Council has been fairly considerate in granting deferrals.

Councilman H. Jack Jennings Jr. moved to change the meeting date to May 14, a day meeting. There is no night meeting scheduled for May. Councilwoman Nancy Creech seconded the motion.

Councilman Harold Heischrober said that the residents should be advised of the change. Wright said he would be glad to advise all the residents.

Mayor Jones said the applicants "have been outstanding citizens of this city and we should show them this courtesy."

The motion passed by a vote of 8-2 with Oberdorf and Henley dissenting.

Earlier Council deferred for 30 days by a vote of 10-0 the application of Gallager Associates for a change of zoning from AG-1 Agricultural District to R-8 Residential District on a 42.319 acre parcel, from AG-2 Agricultural District to R-8 Residential District on a 4.67 acre parcel, from R-8 Residential District to PD-H2 Planned Unit Development District on a 46.989 acre parcel and from AG-1 Agricultural District to P-1 Preservation District on a 37.842 acre parcel on the east side of Holland Road, south of Landstown Road in the Princess Anne Borough.

NOTICE OF TAX INCREASE

The City of Virginia Beach proposes to increase real property tax levies. However, the City Manager's proposed Operating Budget does not include an increase in the current tax rate of $.80 per $100 of assessed value.

1. Assessment Increase: Total assessed value of real property, excluding additional assessments due to new construction or improvements to property, exceeds last year's total assessed value of real property by 5.45 percent.

2. Lowered Rate Necessary to Offset Increased Assessment: The tax rate which would levy the same amount of real estate tax as last year, when multiplied by the new total assessed value of real estate with the exclusions mentioned above, would be $.76 per $100 of assessed value. This rate will be known as the "lowered tax rate."

3. Effective Rate Increase: The City of Virginia Beach proposes to adopt a tax rate of $.80 per $100 of assessed value. The difference between the lowered tax rate and the proposed rate would be $.04 per $100, or 5.26 percent. This difference will be known as the "effective tax rate increase."

Individual property taxes may however increase at a percentage greater than or less than the above percentage.

A public hearing on the increase will be held on Monday, April 23, 1984, at 2:00 p.m. and 7:00 p.m. in the City Council Chambers.

All hearings shall be open to the public. City Council shall permit persons desiring to be heard an opportunity to present oral testimony within such reasonable time limits as shall be determined by City Council.

All interested parties are invited to be present at the time and place aforementioned. Individuals desiring to provide oral comment should register with the City Clerk's Office before the hearing begins. The City Clerk may be contacted at the office on the second floor of the City Hall Building or by calling 427-4303.

Citizen power

The recent all-day session on politics held at Green Run High School illustrates the need we have to get our fellow citizens involved in the election process. At a time when many are being stripped of their right to vote in nations around the world, we in the United States of America must remember that democracy is not a spectator sport. The single vote an eligible citizen possesses is a non-transferrable, hopefully non-negotiable proof of his or her participation as an upright, responsible member of the community, and ultimately the nation.

With municipal elections coming up May 1, all Virginia Beach residents who are eligible registered voters should make an effort to take the time and study the candidates and their issues and decide for whom they will cast an informed vote. Those who fail to do so are not only letting themselves down, they are letting their neighbors down as well.

Applause due

The final concert of the Virginia Beach Community Orchestra is scheduled for Sunday evening, May 6, at 7:30 p.m. in the Pavilion Theatre. Truly a community effort, being the only avocational concert orchestra in Tidewater, the Community Orchestra is an example of an awareness of the value of art to a growing area. Many professional groups have recently chosen Tidewater as a home. The Virginia Opera Association and the Virginia Stage Company being two of the most noticeable, and those organizations are a concrete asset to our way of life as well as a cultural legacy to be valued in days to come.

But lest we lose ourselves in a rush to professionalism, let us not forget the little theaters and other groups that provide the training ground for the artists of the future. And for those groups we call for special applause.

Drunks

Again, Virginia Beach Police Chief Charles Wall is beefing up his crackdown on drunk drivers.

First, he said he was going to do it. He did. DUI arrests and convictions soared within a year after he made his announcement.

Secondly, he secured new equipment, including a DUI van.

Thirdly, he plans for the city to accept a $26,565 grant from the state to pay for about 2,000 overtime hours for our officers who volunteer for drunken driving patrols during late night hours on weekends.

Wall is on the move again. What will he do next?

Out of the closet, guitars!

When was the last time you plucked your guitar? Many Virginia Beach residents have guitars hidden away in attics, in the back of closets, and occasionally hanging on living room walls. This is the month to find them, to dust them off, and to tune them up, maybe even strike a chord or two.

Guitars are actually an instrument with a long and international history. Members of a large group of instruments called chordophones, guitars probably began when early hunters discovered that the "string" on their bows made a noise when plucked. Greek mythological figures such as Apollo, Hermes and Orpheus are depicted playing lyres, an ancestor of the guitar. Egyptian Hittite sculpture shows an instrument with all the general requirements of a guitar: soft feminine curves at the waist, a flat top, a long fretted fingerboard.

By the thirteenth century, stringed instruments were beginning to move from the exclusive ownership of the privileged classes and to appear in the streets, cottages and farmhouses. Experimentation over the centuries had produced changes in sound projection, tone, wood and shapes and number of strings, the 6th string not being added until the time of the American Revolution. In 1810, the first guitar appeared having six single strings tuned to the present E A D G B E arrangement. During the period 1850-1892, instrument maker Antonio de Torres Jurado increased the guitar's width, narrowed the fret board to ease fingering and produced guitars nearly identical in appearance to classical guitars of the 1970's.

Guitars found their way to America from Britain with such famous names as Benjamin Franklin, from Spain and Mexico with colonists and from Africa with the slaves and their more primitive forms of the same type of instrument. The guitar caught on in the growing nation as it was easy to transport, inexpensive, easy to play and was pleasant to listen to.

By the 1930's and the advent of jazz, the guitar had difficulty in holding its own in ensembles including such weighty instruments as the piano. The frustration experienced by guitarists during this era led to experimentation with new technologies and led finally to the acceptance of the use of the contact microphone. The years 1939-1941 represent a watershed period in modern guitar history with Charlie Christian, a member of Benny Goodman's band creating an identity for electric guitars as solo instruments. His playing led the way for such musicians as Dizzie Gillespie, Lester

Young, Charlie Parker and others. In the late 1940's a Belgian-born French gypsy named Jean Baptiste "Django" Reinhardt injected his brand of playing into jazz of the period and paved the way for such players as Wes Montgomery and B.B. King.

Despite the use of the guitar in jazz and in country music as well, the instrument went unheard by the majority of Americans until the momentous 1950's when Elvis Presley appeared before the American public for the first time. While teenage girls were sighing over a new heartthrob, their male counterparts were out shopping for guitars. Instruments became important in the development of the genre of rock-and-roll as evidenced in the recordings of Duane Eddy, Chuck Berry and later on Mick Jagger and Eric Clapton. Surf music would also serve to spur the popularity of the instrument. It was this revitalization, among other social issues of the time, which also saw the revitalization of several forms of more traditional music. Names such as the Kingston Trio, Pete Seeger, Joan Baez, Phil Ochs, Bob Dylan and Peter Paul and Mary became household words across the country. Performers who had been known by relatively small segments of the American population received national recognition: Hank Williams, Woody Guthrie and others. This renaissance in guitar music would also lead to the phenomenon of the Beatles, the acid rock of Jimi Hendrix, an interest in Indian ragas, classical styles, more jazz, etc. Today, there is a wide-range of guitar music available both live and on tape or disc. An entire spectrum exists between refined and sophisticated easy listening music and the sensual exhibitionism of today's rock performers.

Keep all this history in mind when you dust off your guitar. Hidden in it is a lot of the ingenuity of man's inventiveness, a blues chord, a lullaby, a jazz bass run, a wealth of quiet pleasures.

Practical uses for computers

Knowing what you want from a computer is the first step to deciding which computer to buy. This month we'll look at some of the more practical uses.

I want to hook up to the school computer:

Just about any microcomputer you can buy will be "smart" enough to be able to act like a terminal for the school mainframe, so if that's all you want to do, don't fret too much: just go buy something and get going.

You could also consider buying a terminal and modem instead. For $500-700 (less if you buy used) you can buy a good, reliable, full-sized terminal and a

The little things

Sometimes it's the little things that make you somber, like...

going to the convenience store to get a Chilly Willie and when you open the spout the Chilly plops down to the bottom of your cup and the Willie plops up on your white shirt.

never being able to find two socks that match going to visit your father-in-law and parking the car across the street so he won't see the dent in the passenger's side.

knowing this guy who throws sand in the car, sticks a surfboard in his back seat, and has never set a foot on a wave.

wondering if the Soviets are really gearing up for "world domination."

burning the Jiffy Pop, going to the pro shop for a new racket, and turning your ankle on the curb outside.

waiting. Anywhere. when it rains and your cable, telephone, and headphones all go out at once.

having to make the bed. Only an octopus can do it quickly.

having to stop at the store on the way home from work.

getting your hair cut during the summer and feeling the clipped tresses sticking to the back of your sweaty neck.

CUT THROUGH IDLE GOSSIP.

Let's Talk CALL WAITING.

You'll never get through to anyone at home if the phone's in use. And Call Waiting isn't.
Call Waiting puts you through even when your home phone's busy. It lets whoever's on the phone answer your call, and put the other on hold. It even lets them switch between the two calls. It just about puts busy signals out of business.

You need Call Waiting. So don't wait. Pick up your phone and call Continental. We'll put you through. And that's no idle promise.

be purchased during an afternoon soap opera.

"Dr. Sabato read a chapter on media directly from his book 'The Rise of Political Consultants' and it seemed to have quite an impact on the students and their parents," Parker added. "After he spoke we had a 20-minute break and several parents and students remarked that they hadn't realized how important local elections could be, and went on to pledge to get students more involved."

Two discussions

Following lunch the groups alternated attendance at two discussion sessions.

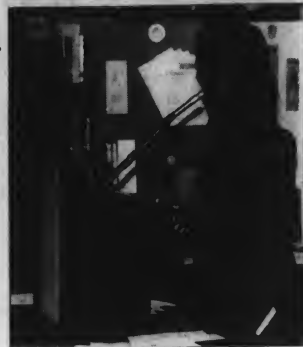

Dr. James W. Ceaser, a professor of political science at the University of Virginia and a leading authority on presidential selection led a group in discussing "1984 Issues in the Presidential Election," while Kathleen Beuzard, a public affairs specialist from the Federal Elective Commission presented computer printouts showing up-to-date figures on how much money each of the candidates have spent so far in their elective bids.

"Dr. Ceaser pointed out that the Democratic Party must be much more active due to the fact that they haven't an incumbent in office," Parker said. "He also analyzed the psychology of Gary Hart's early primary wins and discussed Jesse Jackson's role in the Democratic selection process."

State Senator Joseph Canada and Delegate Glenn McClanan were in attendance, as well as several candidates, including incumbents, in the upcoming May municipal election. Other city officials present included councilmember Reba McClanan, Commonwealth's Attorney Paul Sciortino and Sheriff Joseph Smith.

"The parents and students really enjoyed what was going on," Hope Parker said. "The students especially seemed to enjoy the fact that there were some political candidates on hand for them to talk to. Several signed up to do campaign work. And that was our purpose, to get the students involved."

After a final student caucus to determine how Beach schools might stimulate their own citizen power, the students discussed plans for the National Student/Parent mock election.

Beach Council Actions

The following is a list of some of the actions taken by Virginia Beach City Council at its most recent meeting. Council members are: John A. Baum, Blackwater Borough; Nancy A. Creech, At-Large; Barbara M. Henley, Pungo; Harold Heischberger, At-Large; H. Jack Jennings, Lynnhaven; Louis R. Jones, Bayside; Robert G. Jones, At-Large; W. H. Kitchen III, Virginia Beach; Reba S. McClannan, Princess Anne; J. Henry McCoy, Jr., Kempville; and Meyera Oberndorf, At-Large. The City Manager is Thomas Muehlenbeck. City Attorney is Dale Blimson.

Meeting Date: April 16, 1984. All members present except W. H. Kitchen III and Dr. J. Henry McCoy Jr. Operating Budget Workshop 10:30 a.m.

City Assessor Jerry Banagan gave a report on how property is appraised in the city.

City Manager Thomas H. Muehlenbeck reported on ways in which the budget answers concerns expressed by Council in a questionnaire and reported that the median salary in Fiscal 1984 for city employees was $16,968, up from $14,640 in 1981.

Heischberger noted that the State had increased auto tax fees on dollar and asked whether the city would take similar action. Muehlenbeck said that he considered the taxes mainly a way to keep the automobiles on the rolls and did not recommend an increase.

Henley suggested that the city staff consider a special classification for horse trailers for which owners are required to pay a fee of $25, up from $8. She said that the trailer should be considered more like a boat trailer and is used about a month.

Henley also said that she thought the city should do something about the inequity of the utility tax rate which is the same for a small businessman as it is for a large complex like Lynnhaven Mall with a master meter.

New growth boundry

Council apparently agrees that such information is needed before it can give Public Utilities Director Aubrey Watts any direction on how utilities pipes should be sized in areas that straddle the imaginary line or are south of that line.

The problem now is that south of the line in supposedly agricultural areas are properties zoned for residential growth. One of them, Courthouse Estates on North Landing Road near the Vocational Technical Schools, was zoned for a Planned Unit development back in the early '70's and can contain as many as 1,710 units.

To bring water and sewer to the property, the developer would have to acquire easements over a great expanse of agricultural-zoned property. However, Scott said the Developer is planning to go ahead.

Before Scott reported his plans to bring the information to Council in three weeks, Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorf said Council still had not dealt with the Comprehensive Plan. She said that she had asked for the fiscal impact of growth last November and it has been "totally ignored." She was also concerned that council was talking about putting pipes in the ground while it still doesn't know whether it will have a water source to support additional households which will be built in areas where "somebody took the liberty of rezoning irresponsibly."

Although Watts has been asking for direction on how to proceed in determining what size pipes would be used, Council finds the Comprehensive Plan, which is being reviewed this year and the utilities decisions inseparable, finding itself hamstrung to proceed with one without the other.

There are other developments which are being developed but are being developed are Three Oaks near the Nimmo Church and Fox Fire off Seaboard Road.

The current policy of the city in regard to sizing of pipes is to size the utilities according to the comprehensive plan or current zoning, whichever is greater. The drawback to this policy is that the Comprehensive Plan now may not be what it will be at the end of the year.

Other options, Watts, said, are to size utilities for each development, move "the line" and eliminate some of the conflicts, to provide for service areas as the Council did in the Sandbridge project, or to downzone property. But this last alternative would probably land the city in court.

The Utilities Department meanwhile has to advise developers on the size pipe they put down in their projects. In cases where the pipes are expected to serve future growth areas, the city requests larger pipes and gives the developer credits on tap-on fees in return.

The city also has to abide by State Health Department requirements and the State Water Control Board requirements that a water system needs to be based on 30 years' predicted growth and a sewer system on 50 years' growth.

Watts also emphasized that the rural line is not a no-growth line because growth exists below the line, but can be a no-rezoning line in which case growth would occur at existing zoning.

Watts said that it is important to know the sequence in which development will occur so that areas next to developed areas would be next in line for extension of services.

Councilman John A. Baum said that some of the areas can be put on hold until the Comprehensive Plan is revised.

Mayor Louis R. Jones said that it was foolish to size the lines into Three Oaks just "to serve one spot when we know we have property that is zoned just south of it. We can hold up until the Comprehensive Plan is ready, but pipes to size Three Oaks is foolish."

Vice Mayor Barbara Henley pointed out that Council would have a hard time explaining to people in the north end of the city why money is being spent on new areas when their needs have not been met. Many questions are unanswered, she said. For example, if utilities were extended, roads would have to be added.

Councilman H. Jack Jennings Jr. said he did not want to see Council bogged down in indecisiveness.

Scott said that a 30 day delay will not slow down his department, but after that his staff would need at least tentative decisions on how to use service areas.

In answer to a question from Jennings, City Manager Thomas H. Muehlenbeck said that the city's present policy of using the Comprehensive Plan or present zoning offers the most flexibility at this time.

Baum said that if Council did nothing it will be rebuilding the lines between development and rural areas. He said by the time the Comprehensive Plan is revised, the R-8 and apartment zoning which "stick out as sore thumbs" will be redrawn.

"I would like to draw the line myself. If we don't do something different we will be recognizing what's there."

Councilman Robert Jones said he hated to have things go by default.

Mayor Louis R. Jones said he found it hard to understand how the Planning commission to going to come with a (Comprehensive) plan unless it receives direction from Council. "Council has to draw the line," he said.

Baum said that Council held the line on Three Oaks (which has less dense R-3 zoning) and in denying the Decisions on changes in two site plans have been deferred until neighboring residents have a chance to review the changes. The communities involved are Kempville Greens, and Great Neck Road. A third plan brought into Council for review was for the Virginia Beach Racquet Club which will construct an addition in a separate building. Jennings asked whether the drainage of Ocean Park could be carried directly into the Bay rather than into the Lynnhaven. Muehlenbeck said the cost would be much higher. Council decided to invite a spokesman from the Hampton Roads Water Quality Agency to discuss that body's preferences.

Potatoes, Boiled - Add half a teaspoon of pure lemon juice to the water to keep peeled potatoes white and bring out the real potato taste.

If they're old potatoes, add one tablespoon of sugar to the water before boiling to improve the taste tremendously.

Potatoes, Keeping The Skins Soft - Rub the skins with olive oil or with the rind of a lemon before placing potatoes in the oven. Their skins will be soft and delicious.

Or wrap them individually in aluminum foil.

Rubbing the skins with bacon fat improves the taste as well.

Potatoes, Preventing Darkening - Add one or two tablespoons of white vinegar to cold water. Cover tightly and raw peeled potatoes will keep for days in your refrigerator.

Note: Make sure the water and vinegar mixture completely covers the potatoes.

Pumpkin, Baking - Cut it to the preferred size, wash well, but don't peel. The outer skin helps retain all the flavor. When cooked, the skin is much easier to remove.

Putty, Substitution - Make a thick paste of linseed oil and whiting. It'll set hard, just like real putty, and is very effective.

Rabbits, Getting Rid Of - Rabbits love strawberries, as well as the bark from fruit trees. Soak a pound of liver, cut up into two-inch pieces, in hot water for four to five minutes. Strain the mixture and put it in a spray bottle. Spray it on your brambles or fruit trunks. It discourages rabbits very quickly.

Talcum powder mixed with crushed mothballs is also a marvelous deterrent to rabbits. Sprinkle it liberally around your plants and vegetables and it repels them. Note: Buy inexpensive talcum powder.

Rain Spots On Felt And Satin, Removing - Roll some white tissue paper into a ball and rub the affected areas in a circular motion. If the tissue paper becomes soiled, make another ball and continue to rub.

Razor Blades, Sharpening - If using a double edged blade, try this. With warm water, wet the inside of a glass, then, with two fingers, press the razor blade onto the inside of the glass and rub back and forth. Now, reverse the blade and repeat the process. You'll get many more shaves out of your old blade.

Red, Inflamed Eyes - Into one pint of water, pour one teaspoon of boric acid, then boil. When cool, apply to eyes with a dropper or eye washer. The solution works in five to ten minutes.

Refrigerator, Cleaning The Exterior - The best thing to use is one quart of warm water with one fourth cup of bicarbonate of soda. Then dry and polish it.

Note: A good polisher is ordinary wax paper.

Refrigerator, Energy Tip - Never put hot foods in your refrigerator. It takes a lot more power to cool. Let your food cool off first.

Refrigerator Odors - Two or three lumps of charcoal or one saucerful of fine charcoal will absorb odors and sweeten the refrigerator.

Or thoroughly wipe the inside of the refrigerator with a soft white cloth soaked in warm white vinegar.

Two tablespoons of vanilla essence in a small open bottle is also very good for odors.

Freshen your refrigerator by washing the interior every ten days with a solution of warm water and baking soda.

The armoire -- France's most versatile performer

Whether authentic Louis XV or copies of French Empire or French Regence, the pervasive beauty that French style furnishings create in the home is enchanting.

In a word, French furniture is "Recherche." Luxury and beauty are stressed. Curves appear where possible. Pieces have cabriole legs, carved knees, and scroll feet.

Typical of the elegance and refinement of this traditional style is the armoire. In France, this piece of furniture was historically used to store clothes even though its name was derived from an earlier kind of storage -- that of arms or armor.

In America, with its plenitude of closets, armchairs don't always hold clothes. Instead, they may likely be converted into china closets, bars, or shelters for T.V. or stereo components.

Thomasville's FRENCH COURT armoire is an impressive 82 inches high. Its upper section has a tray, two shelves (the lower one is removable) and removable partitions behind two doors. The lower section has three trays behind its twin doors. Olive ash-burl banding follows the cabinet's fluid forms; raised panels repeat with olive ash-burl inserts.

An outstanding feature of the FRENCH COURT armoire is its brass-finished hardware that reappears on inside drawers. Fully dressed with ornate interior hardware, the piece becomes a beautiful display showcase when doors are ajar.

For lovers of pastoral charm

Some where between formal "court" and plebeian designs of day-to-day necessity is a unique and enduring style of rural French furniture.

First seen in quaint cottages in villages along the Seine, country French pieces later decorated chalets in the rolling hills of southern France.

Today, Thomasville has created CHALET -- a memorable collection of Country French bedroom, dining-room, and occasional furniture like the outstanding Secretary and accent chair illustrated.

Woods are premium pine. Relief carvings, classic fluting, and roses are featured. A distinctive dark finish with antique distressing and dusty wax residue effects appear in carvings and moldings to create a time-worn appearance.

This Secretary/desk has beautiful wood fretwork and glass ends, two adjustable glass shelves, mirror back, and two interior lights with a dimmer switch. Eight pigeon holes, three letter compartments, one drawer, and one stationary shelf are behind the drop lid, above the three storage drawers.

The "Harvest Chair" sports a rustic hand-carved rush seat.

Rate hike sought by Continental

Continental Telephone of Virginia has filed a request with the Virginia State Corporation Commission (SCC) for a $23.9 million rate increase, said William Dales, president of Continental Telephone of Virginia.

The company, which was granted its last rate increase of $5.7 million in November 1982, requests the rates become effective May 7, 1984.

If the new rates are approved, the average monthly increase for basic local service will be 45 percent, Dales said.

Continental's filing includes larger calling areas for many customers and optional calling plans to help customers reduce their local service charges.

Dales cites reasons why the rate increase is necessary: deregulation of telephone sets, effects of the AT&T divestiture on long distance revenues, and increased operating expenses.

Deregulation of telephone sets in January 1983 caused local service revenues to decline because the number of leased telephones decreased, Dales said.

"At the end of 1981, we were leasing 350,000 telephones. Now we are leasing 238,000 phones. This reduction in leased telephones represents a loss of more than $3.5 million in annual revenues," he said.

With the breakup of the Bell System, Jan. 1, 1984, the process by which Continental received long distance revenues ended. Starting June 13, the company will be compensated for toll operations by access charges from inter-city long distance carriers.

"However," Dales said, "the revenues from these access charges will not cover our long distance operations. There will be a shortfall of several million dollars."

Continental's operation expenses have increased $2.9 million since December 1981.

Dales says the 10.18 percent rate of return authorized from the last rate case is not adequate in today's economic environment. "We believe our current rate of return should be between 10.81 percent and 10.98 percent," he said.

Continental Telephone of Virginia has a total investment of $442,437,999 in equipment and facilities. The company has spent $93,642,166 in equipment and facilities since its last rate hike.

Continental has spent $8,081,797 in this area from 1979 to 1983. The major expenditures are:

- Installed new computer equipment in Shipp's Corner equipment office and smaller computer equipment in Princess Anne and Pungo.

- Installed new long distance transmission equipment in all exchanges.

- Added and/or replaced 9,458 equipment office lines.

- Added 1,629 new access lines.

- Completed major recabling in Pungo, Shipp's Corner and Princess Anne.

- Added Custom Calling features in all exchanges except Knotts Island.

- Added Calling Card service to Shipp's Corner.

Princess Anne and Pungo.

- Installed computer telephone line testing equipment.

Continental provides service to the following exchanges in this area: Princess Anne, Pungo, Shipp's Corner and Knotts Island.

Virginia Beach receives defense department honor

The City of Virginia Beach has earned a top U.S. Defense Department Award for the outstanding support of its employees who are in the military reserve and National Guard.

The City has been presented with a State Chairman's Award from the Virginia Committee for Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve, one of four given by the committee at the recent annual conference of the Virginia National Guard Association in Williamsburg.

Colonel Thomas T. Thompson, Commander of the Virginia Army National Guard's 329th Support Group, based at Virginia Beach, said the city deserved recognition for its cooperation in handling some employee's unusual time-off requirements because of Guard-related duty.

Several members of the support group, who also are city employees, "have had to place a heavy burden on (the city) due to their absence, to assist the command in the accomplishment of its assigned missions," he said.

Five major exercises over a 12 month period were part of the Support Group's training, but "at no time has a request to participate in Guard functions received an unfavorable personnel action by the city," he said.

City Manager Thomas Muehlenbeck received the award on behalf of the city.

Dalton to head loan dept.

Life Federal Savings and Loan Association has named B. Clyde Dalton to manage its newly formed automobile installment loan department.

Dalton has had 20 years experience in automobile lending with local commercial banks. Most recently he supervised the auto loan department for Citizens Savings and Loan in Virginia Beach.

"While Life Federal will make loans on both new and used cars, the loans aren't designed to compete with dealer financing plans," says Dalton. "In many cases, dealer financing is only available on certain models for a specified period of time. We'll be able to make a loan on any car, to a qualified customer, just as any bank would."

Real Estate News

By Roger G. Pyle

For this week's article let's talk about what you should expect from your residential Realtor if you are a homebuyer.

First of all, I need to emphasize that most Realtors work on a commission basis. They are to be admired for that. Their pay is unequivocally tied to productivity which is one thing that the entire U.S. economy needs more of. Also, it takes lots of coverage and self confidence to work on 100 percent commission. If your Realtor is providing good service, they deserve your loyalty.

Good service to a homebuyer should include:

1. If you are coming in from out of town, advance information packets should be sent to give you an overview of the area, outlining good residential locations, routes to your work and schools. Motel reservations and precise directions on how to get there should be given.

2. You should expect to be picked up at your motel, provided with an area briefing that includes where the best home values are in your price range, routes and distances to your work, schools and recreation.

3. Your Realtor should then show you all the suitable property in your price range. They should be able to explain differences in construction, location and financing. Here's where the loyalty comes in. If your Realtor is doing a good job for you, for heavens sake stay with them. If you go out with another Realtor, it is the same as dropping your original Realtor cold. If that's what you want to do, it's perfectly permissible, but if your Realtor is doing a good job, stay with them.

4. Your Realtor can help you make your final selection of the right home, advise you on what to offer, negotiate with the seller, finalize the sale and help you get the loan.

5. Finally, they should go to settlement with you to help make sure that everything is completed to your satisfaction.

Edward Snyder honored among Toyota dealer elite

Edward B. Snyder of Checkered Flag Toyota, Virginia Beach, knows what it's like to be part of a winning team. Snyder has earned membership in two of Toyota's top dealer groups — the President's 1000 Club and the Truck Task Force.

Snyder is one of only 61 Toyota dealers nationwide honored with membership in both groups. The President's 1000 consists of Toyota dealers who sold at least 1,000 new vehicles in 1983, while the Truck Task Force consists of dealers who sold 250-499 new trucks.

"The efforts of these dealers helped Team Toyota achieve a year of records in 1983, and for the sixth consecutive year they've earned the Import Triple Crown for selling the most cars, trucks and total vehicles," said Yukiyasu Togo, president of Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc.

"Their achievements serve as an example for all of our dealers and further explain why Toyota dealerships sell more cars per outlet than any other franchise in the automobile industry."

Formed in 1975 as a means of recognizing Toyota's top U.S. Dealers, the President's 1000 Club has evolved into one of the most prestigious organizations in the Toyota network. The 161 dealers who comprise the club represent less than 20 percent of Toyota's nearly 1,100 U.S. dealers, but they accounted for nearly 50 percent of all Toyotas sold in 1983.

Practical computers

modem so you can dial up to any computer. For the same price, I think a terminal is a better buy than a computer. I also think that after two or three years the terminal will have more value than a low-priced computer.

Furthermore, there's at least one firm in the Tidewater area that rents and leases terminals. Be sure to check out this possibility if all you need to do is dial up to school.

I want to get news and stock market reports:

This is another case of dialing up or hooking up to another computer. There are several national computer information services which have information data bases that you can access for a fee. Topics include air travel, fashion, agriculture, weather, business news of all types, food, book and movie reviews, medicine, sports, and hundreds more.

As with dialing up to the school computer, any microcomputer will do for his purpose, though a terminal alone may be enough.

I want to play games:

For arcade-style games, an under-$500 computer that specializes in games is your best bet. If it has a full-size keyboard, too, you will be able to do other things as well when you want. These computers offer color graphics to enhance their games, so you may want a color monitor also. You will still be under $1,000, and you'll have both a toy and a general-purpose computer that can be used as a terminal.

There are also interesting adventure games on the market that don't call for the skill of a fighter pilot, but are fun nonetheless. Games like these are available for computers in all price ranges.

I want to write letters and term papers with it:

You don't need color graphics to write reports, but a screen that doesn't display 80-character lines is a handicap. I also recommend at least 400k (kilo, or thousand) bytes of disk capacity on at least two disk drives. More disk space is better, since text files can take up a lot of room. With less than 400k bytes, or with only one disk drive, you'll spend a lot of time taking one disk out of a drive and putting another back in. You can get a comfortable system with two drives for $1,500-2,500.

I have financial problems to solve:

If you have a lot of investments, or several income properties, or more tax forms to fill out than the average taxpayer, a personal computer can be a big help. A computer in the $1,500-2,500 range (more if you have to buy specialized programs) will fill the bill, though you may be tempted to spend much more.

I want to write programs:

Every computer you can buy for over $25 will let you program in basic. Since every computer you can buy uses a slightly different version of basic, you'll probably have to spend some time learning the basics of any machine you buy.

If you want to write programs in sophisticated languages like Pascal or Cobol, then again you'll want a system with a goodly amount of disk capacity. The $1,500-2,500 range is what you will need.

I want to experiment and tinker:

Two vendors in particular make systems which are not only very popular, but also very flexible: Apple and IBM. Their computers have several "expansion slots." You buy the basic system, then as your budget allows you can buy special-purpose circuit boards for some really exotic things. These extra boards are not cheap, but they give these systems a great deal of power and versatility that other systems do not have.

If you're inclined to tinker, then either of these brands is for you. Expect to pay $2,500-4,000 for a complete system don't be misled by the low price for the minimum configuration computer itself, since you will want disk drives and software as well.

Operating budget includes general salary increase

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

Virginia Beach Councilman H. Jack Jennings Jr. is opposed to any across-the-board salary increase and supports only raises for merit.

At a budget work session Monday afternoon following the public hearing on the budget, Jennings said that he would have difficulty dealing with an across-the-board increase. In this way the city would be "rewarding mediocrity the same way you are those doing a superlative job," he said.

City Manager Thomas H. Muehlenbeck's $225,806,678 operating budget includes a 7.5 percent general salary increase for city employees, effective July 1. An across-the-board cost-of-living or salary increase has been part of the budget for years. Similar increases are included in the School Board budget.

During the discussion Council also considered:

- Employing another person in the Treasurer's Office in addition to the two already there to step up collection of personal property taxes on motor vehicles. The operation has been dubbed the "Pink Panther."
- Increases in the Arts and Humanities budget.
- Standardization of computer purchases.
- Anticipated School Board cost increases over the next five years.

- The tax for horse trailers.
- An expense account for Council members.
- The parking of school buses in residential neighborhoods.

- The operation of the City Attorney's office.

Council also scheduled another workshop for May 7 at 10 a.m. with approval of the budget scheduled for May 14 at 2 p.m. and on second reading on May 15 at 2 p.m. May 15 is the deadline for approval of the School Board budget.

Concerning wages, Muehlenbeck said that all employees whether their positions are frozen or not will receive the cost-of-living increase. He said that part of the problem with the city's salary program is that 30 percent of the employees are in frozen steps—that is they cannot go higher.

Councilman Robert J. Jones noted that the employees at the top levels have to wait for three years before they will be eligible for another salary increase.

He said he would like to suggest a reward for keeping these people tied up so long.

Muehlenbeck said the philosophy behind freezing the positions is that growth of a employee levels off or decreases after a certain level, but he said he believed that any job will continue to grow.

Jennings asked whether it would cost less money to unfreeze positions and go to merit raises.

Muehlenbeck said the problem enters in trying to adjust the salary to the job. He said that if the city hopes to continue to get the high caliber of employees, it has to remain competitive.

Muehlenbeck said that the State also is giving across-the-board increases and that 4200 city employees are looking for remuneration.

Jennings said he wanted to reward performance. He said later that he would submit an alternate proposal concerning salaries later.

"I don't believe in across-the-board increases," he said, "for anybody, Dr. Benham, "he said directing his last comment to Dr. Fred Benham, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of finance.

Benham said later that everybody seems to support merit increases for teachers, but nobody can decide who should make the decision.

Vice Mayor Barbara M. Henley asked whether the School Board had the same scale as the city.

Benham said that two systems tried to obtain parity three years ago and although there is a difference in increments, the ranges are approximately the same.

Henley said she didn't want one to get ahead of the other.

Benham said that each year employees receive a 2 1/2 percent step increase which ranges over 13 to 14 years. If an employee's performance is unsatisfactory, "we dismiss them," he said. Classified employees are different in this respect than teachers. Teachers are placed on probation by the School Board and have tenure after three years. They can still be fired for cause, he said.

In answer to a question from Jennings, Muehlenbeck said that the 7.5 percent increase will cost the city $5.4 million including benefits. He said the median salary for a city employee is $16,000.

Jones said that he would like to see the median salary of School Board employees. Benham said that a speaker

Garcia plans amusement park

Telethon benefits Beach Easter Seal Center

By Mabel Owen

Edward S. Garcia announced plans recently to build a 70-acre amusement park near the oceanfront that, if approved by City Council May 14, construction would begin on this summer, with a spring 1986 opening date.

The proposal faces opposition from the Navy and from residents of Bellwood Park, a community bordering the proposed site of the amusement center.

Developer Garcia's plans call for a roller coaster; a monorail; a course for dirt bikes; "Grand Prix" and "NASCAR" style race tracks where full size autos would race the clock, one at a time; and a go-cart track for younger drivers.

"This is something that people have been saying for years that the Beach has needed," Garcia said. "It will be a family-oriented type of complex."

Garcia estimated that the park might cost as much as $35 million to develop and could add more than $1 million a year to city tax revenues.

The Navy, however, is opposed to the park because it is seeking to buy air rights to the property, hoping to restrict development around the Oceana Naval Air Station.

Bellwood Park residents appeared before the Planning Commission on April 17 to protest what they felt would be an additional noise and traffic burden on their neighborhood.

The disputed land is located two miles from the oceanfront, west of South Birdneck Road and about two miles south of the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway.

The local chapter of the Easter Seal Society recently held its annual telethon on Wednesday, April 25. Dale Parsons, Susan Gailley and Lee Milteer served as local television host and hostesses for the telethon. Pat Boone and his daughter Debbie Boone also appeared.

The Easter Seal Center in Virginia Beach is the regional office of The Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults Inc. of Virginia, a voluntary, not for profit organization and an affiliate of the National Easter Seal Society. The national society was formed in 1919 and is the largest voluntary direct service health agency in the United States.

The center in Virginia Beach, located at 3010 Magic Hollow Boulevard, is guided by an advisory committee of professional personnel drawn from medical, educational and social service organizations which work with handicapped persons. Its programs and services are dependent primarily upon contributions from the sale of Easter Seals during a statewide campaign before Easter. Additional income is derived from memberships, foundations, bequests, legacies, memorials, gifts and special events. With the exception of a membership paid to the National Easter Seal Society (7.8%) to support the national research effort and other national services, all money raised in Virginia Beach (92.2%) remains here.

The director of the local society, Mrs. Jean Douglas, is trained in all policies and programs pertaining to fund raising. The recent telethon raised over $80,000 in pledges. The latest concern is to equip a large vacant room at the center as a Rehabilitation center. Stroke victims and crippled persons will be able to use equipment which will help them to overcome their problems. The Princess Anne Woman's Club has pledged $5,000 for this purpose. This will be matched by public contributions. Beach residents may send a check to the center and designate it to be used for this purpose.

"The Last Supper"

Artist Levon Mnazakanian and CBN President Pat Robinson discuss "The Last Supper" during an airing of The 700 Club.

CBN unveils new painting

The Christian Broadcasting Network recently unveiled an important new interpretation of "The Last Supper" by Levon Armenius Mnazakanian, who defected from the Soviet Union in 1964 after religious persecution and who is an acknowledged master of the high Renaissance style in which the painting is executed.

The painting, a massive 6 1/2' high by 28' wide, took five years to complete and is one of the largest works of fine art created in this country in the 20th Century.

Because of its size, the painting is not likely to be moved from the Georgian CBN headquarters building designated as its permanent home. The work, commissioned by CBN, will be on display to the public there.

The painting made its world debut April 7 in South Hamilton, Mass., a Boston suburb, at Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary as the centerpiece of a one-man exhibition by the artist, who is active with Boston's prestigious Copley Society, the oldest art society in the nation.

"We are overjoyed to have this magnificent piece of art at CBN," said CBN's founder and president, Dr. M. G. (Pat) Robertson. "This painting by Levon represents an important contribution to the art world and gives us a new perception of this holy event in our Lord's last week here on earth."

Mnazakanian did very little preliminary research for the painting, choosing to interpret it in his own style as a feast. After completion of his preliminary sketch, Mnazakanian then analyzed the three great renditions of "The Last Supper" by Peter Paul Rubens, Andrea del Sarto and Leonardo da Vinci. The painting has a life expectancy of 600 years.

Mnazakanian, a naturalized U.S. citizen, was born Sept. 6, 1923, in Yerevan, Armenia, a section of Soviet Russia. He studied art in Yerevan, Moscow and Leningrad. As his mastery of the high Renaissance style grew, Mnazakanian drew the ire of the government for his religious bent. Pressed to change the style and subject matter of his painting, Mnazakanian refused. He sought asylum while touring Vienna, Austria, in 1964 and arrived in the U.S. in 1965.

The artist made his home in the Boston area and in 1966 was granted a one-man show by the Copley Society. His work since has received critical acclaim in this country and abroad. His paintings are in many churches and private collections throughout the United States and Europe, including that of the Archbishop of Canterbury in England.

Hard questions

A recent Department of Justice survey found that nearly a half million cases of family violence occur each year in the U.S. The offender is usually a spouse or former spouse, and women are three times more likely to become victims than men.

One fourth of victims of attack by their spouses or former spouses have reported that they had been victims of at least three similar crimes during the six months prior. Among family crimes, 88 percent were assaults, 10 percent robberies and 2 percent rapes.

Forty-nine percent of victims reported being injured, with 80 percent of those injuries being cuts and bruises.

What is going on out there behind closed doors? Is our society so hardened that violence has replaced discussion? Are we moving too fast to slow down?

It would be easy to blame the media, purveyors of shoot-em-up TV and chase-em-and-crash-em movies, or worse, makers of those slash and screamer films that have replaced the old B movie westerns and comedies.

Are we imitating these bad films in a dangerous flirtation with violence? Why are we as a people so frustrated with our lives that we injure those we love, or at least once loved? Where can we turn?

Hard questions have no easy answers.

Peace of mind

If your home were burglarized tomorrow, how much would you lose?

Most people would be likely to reply that since their homes and possessions are insured, they wouldn't lose anything. But according to experts in the home security business, some of the items most commonly stolen are either uninsured or under-insured. And regardless of insurance coverage, some property is literally irreplaceable.

The most popular targets of burglars are: Jewelry, electronic equipment (stereos, TVs, VCRs, home computers), bicycles, tools, musical instruments, cameras, guns, furniture, silver and gold, and collectible coins.

Your jewelry, the burglars' favorite target, may have enormous sentimental value. Grandfather's pocket watch or great grandmother's cameo may only be worth $50 or $200 in cash, but you cannot insure the incalculable value of a family heirloom. When that pocket watch is taken, you are also robbed of the chance to pass it along to the next generation.

Antique furniture, Oriental rugs and coin and stamp collections can rarely be replaced even if they are fully insured because they are usually one-of-a-kind items.

Above all, the sense of outrage that your possessions have been ransacked and scattered about, and the lingering uneasiness whenever you enter your home late at night are feelings that remain long after the money matters have been settled and the TV replaced. And peace of mind can be the most valuable possession of all.

Progress slow at MIA talks

In the decade since official U.S. involvement in the Vietnam War came to an end and nearly 600 American prisoners of war were returned, the Vietnamese have been less than cooperative in accounting for prisoners who did not return and providing information on the missing. As a result, 2,490 American servicemen and civilians are still missing and unaccounted for in Indochina.

For almost eight years, the U.S. government made minimal effort to collect and analyze intelligence data indicating some Americans may still be captive; however, in recent years, Vietnamese and Lao refugees fleeing their countries have brought hundreds of such reports. Current U.S. government policy reflects the possibility that some men may be held, and firsthand sighting reports are being investigated on that assumption. According to President Ronald Reagan, this issue is one of "highest national priority," an increase in attention and resources overwhelmingly supported on a bipartisan basis by Members of Congress.

Forty percent of all funds collected through the Virginia Beach Unit are used for nationwide programs, according to Boswell.

Memory of the Cross

In 1607 the three ships Godspeed, Sarah Constant and Discovery entered the Chesapeake Bay with over 100 settlers. The first thing the settlers did was to follow the orders of King James and place a cross on the shore giving thanks for a safe voyage and the beautiful new world upon which they stood.

The Order of Cape Henry 1607 will hold their annual pilgrimage to the Memorial Cross at Fort Story Sunday April 29, at 3 p.m. Reverend John H. Jordan will lead celebrants in giving thanks for the successful landing made on this shore 377 years ago, bringing about the beginnings of our heritage. A program has been planned including prayer and song.

Speaking will be Captain James Carine, Executive Assistant to the Deputy Supreme Allied Commander Atlantic, U.S. Navy.

The public is invited to participate in the ceremony. Services will be held in the Post Chapel at Fort Story should the weather not permit outside services.

The show will go on

Rehearsals continue daily for Princess Anne's upcoming "West Side Story" in spite of numerous problems.

At first the show was plagued with illness of the P.A. students, many of the local schools hearing of Princess Anne's problems have offered assistance," Burnsworth said. Green Run High School has just presented a successful spring show, "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dream Coat," which was supported by the P.A. drama students and in turn Green Run has sought to help P.A. in any way possible. Kempsville

High School offered additional costumes. The students say seeing Booker T. Washington's performance of "West Side Story" also added inspiration to their show. Mrs. Shelia Dixon, choral director for Independence Junior High School, has recently been assisting the cast, giving a more professional showmanship to their music.

Burnsworth is excited about the student dancing, saying "Everyone should be very surprised with the quality of dancing illustrated by these High School students. Subee Davis and K. C. Ivey have spent endless evenings working with them, choreographing the show. Maria is portrayed by Sandy Self, Miss P.A. 1984; Tony by Gary Spell, state Thespian president; Anita by Lora Matthews, S.C.A. president; and Bernardo by Lohr Brooks, a fourth year drama student.

Local businesses have been helpful by donating fencing, juke box, wood, paint, and scenery in order to add to the performance. Tickets cost $3 and are available in advance at Princess Anne High School May 1 and 2. The show is open to the public. Determined students say the show will go on.

"It is imperative we begin to plan intelligently for the quality of life we want to pass on to our children."

"Anne's business qualifications and her concern for planning for the future are just two reasons why I endorse Anne Gimenez."

Council considers budget

at the Public Hearing earlier had been correct with the $28,584 figure he had given as the average teachers salary, but this is counting fringe benefits and hospitalization. The average reported in the city manager's budget is $22,656.

Jennings repeated that he would like to see excellence rewarded with excellence and mediocrity rewarded with mediocrity.

Pink Panther

Muehlenbeck reported that the two persons transferred from the High Constable's Office to the Treasurer's Office were responsible for collections of delinquent taxes totaling $301,739.07 for the period July 1, 1983 through April 17, 1984.

In addition, there were also $8,665.49 in tax exonerations and 2,509 tickets issued, 1,426 were registered vehicles in Virginia Beach and 1,221 were taxable personal properties which excludes the military.

Both Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorf and Councilman Harold Heischober suggested adding people to the Constitutional office to increase the pace of the collection activities.

Muehlenbeck said that the two he recommended to clerical positions in the Treasurer's Office budget provides the treasurer with the latitude of combining the two positions into one collection officer.

Heischober said that when the program was first suggested, Treasurer John Atkinson said that $1 to $2 million could be collected. "I think there's another million out there," he recommended an additional man to the operation which was generally accepted by other Council members.

Muehlenbeck said there may be spinoffs from the program. The city is providing other cities with lists of vehicles registered in those cities where city decals are missing and expect to be provided with lists from other cities of Beach vehicles which are not displaying decals.

Jennings said that $1.2 million was expected to be collected by six people. With two people on the job, he said, the collections have almost worked out mathematically to one-third.

Standardization

Councilman Robert G. Jones pushed for standardization of computer purchases including those with the School Board. "I believe completely in a strong and forward movement in data processing. The goal should be the most electronically-wired system in the country," he said.

Muehlenbeck said the first step under reorganization of the administration would be the standardization of the system under one person.

School Board

Councilwoman Reba McClanan asked Benham for the growth expectations of the School Board over the next two years. Jennings said he wanted budget forecasts for the next five years.

Over the next two years, Benham said the school system, which is now the largest it has ever been, looks for a two percent growth or 1,000 students a year. The new curriculum mandated by the state, he said, will take three to four years before it is fully implemented. The coming year's eighth-grade class will be the first affected by increased requirements, he said, and 27 teachers had to be added for next year. Students will be taking more classes and have less free time, he said. Graduation requirements will be increased and the added programs will be offered in all schools.

Benham said that the five-year projections will take in inflation and population with increased costs regarding curriculum changes programmed in. He said the intangible costs result from whims of the General Assembly.

Horse Trailers

Henley asked for cost figures for reducing the license for horse trailers to that for boat trailers.

Contributions

The $260,000 appropriation to the Eastern Virginia Medical Authority was questioned. EVMA had requested $275,000 or an increase of $25,000. The manager recommended $260,000, an increase of $10,000.

named curator

The Maier Museum of Art at Randolph-Macon Woman's College has appointed Ellen Schall as its first full-time curator.

Schall returns to the college after receiving her MA in art history from the State University of New York at Binghamton, where she worked in the University Art Gallery as a graduate assistant. She graduated cum laude in 1980 from Randolph-Macon Woman's College where she was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and a double major in art history and studio art.

Prior to graduate school, Schall was an assistant to the curator of American and Contemporary Art and assistant to the registrar at The Chrysler Museum in Norfolk. She has worked extensively with acquisitions, exhibitions and other curatorial responsibilities.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney F. Schall of Virginia Beach.

GL Cross-Lites says:
"Let each esteem others better than himself."

Councilman Dr. H. Henry McCoy Jr. said he favored a contribution but wanted it to be proportional to that of other area communities.

Muehlenbeck said that only Chesapeake has announced its allocation so far and it is the same as the current allocation.

Councilwoman Reba McClanan agreed with McCoy, but asked why the allocation for the Virginia Beach Maritime Historical Museum was almost doubled, from $30,000 to $54,000.

R. Jones said that last year he had understood that the city would allocated $250,000 to the EVMA with the understanding that it would be reduced to $200,000 this year and phased out over five years.

"I don't agree with that," said McCoy.
"I went along because I thought it would be reduced this year," replied R. Jones.

Jennings asked for an assessment of the dollars from other communities coming into Virginia Beach.

Councilwoman Nancy Creech said that pure numbers can show anything. She said that "you can't say the Chrysler Museum is not a regional asset. It can't be measured by dollars." She said she was impressed with the work the EVMA does in a recent visit there with Oberndorf and Henley. She pointed out that Virginia Beach will want cooperation from Norfolk on other matters.

McCoy pointed out that Virginia Beach is not going to build another medical school.

Contributions such as these amount to $3,198,084 in the proposed budget, compared to $3,019,806 during the current year.

City Attorney

Jennings also submitted questions concerning the city attorney's office. He wants to know:

What assignments are held by the assistant city attorneys, the track record of the office for the past three years, how many cases were settled in the city's favor, the money spent in settlement, how much of the settlement cost is covered by insurance, how many consultants have been employed, how many specialties required consultants, which boards and commissions have attorneys on a regular basis, how often the office has to defend the city appeals.

Jennings said he was asking the questions for information purposes because the office is the least understood.

McClanan said that since the office has "an administrator and all this personnel," it should have a better handle on these questions. She said she had asked for a memorandum on the additional services provided by the office but has not received a reply.

School Buses

Oberndorf asked for the cost of parking school buses at locations other than a residential street. She said she realized that some of the buses are from private schools but that the parking of the buses causes great unhappiness between neighbors.

Councilman John A. Baum said that in most instances the woman bus driver has no way of getting back and forth and would not be able to take the job unless she could take the bus home.

Benham said that the school administration had proposed in the budget to have a $25,000 survey made of the feasibility of having central parking, but that the School Board deleted the item.

McClanan said the problem is different in new neighborhoods with small lots.

Benham said that Muehlenbeck could contact Superintendent of Schools E. E. Brickell or Mayor Louis R. Jones could contact School Board Chairman Dr. Roy A. Woods if they want the survey reconsidered. Benham said that Norfolk has central parking but they're talking there as though they'd rather have off-street parking. Most of the Council members favored the study. Others were non-committal.

Political Note

When Mayor Jones asked Council when they'd like to have another workshop, McClanan quipped, "I think we'll have another one after the election."

Said Baum, "She's blunt the way I was before I had opposition."

McClanan is running unopposed for the Princess Anne Borough Council seat and Baum is running for the Blackwater seat against one opponent.

MIA/POW

U.S. government considers concrete progress on the POW/MIA issue as the primary measure of Lao sincerity. Current efforts are directed toward establishing joint (U.S./Lao) crash site searches. Following a high level official mission to Laos in December of 1983, the Lao government agreed to the first official, joint investigation of an aircraft crash site. This is particularly important since nearly 600 Americans are missing in Laos.

Thus far, progress is unsatisfactory but there is substantive evidence that current priority and policy offer potential. Public awareness is growing, high level dialogue has been established with the Indochinese governments and intelligence priorities have been raised. All major veterans organizations (Veterans of Foreign Wars, The American Legion, Disabled American Veterans, AM-VETS, Jewish War Veterans, The Retired Officers Association, Catholic War Veterans) are on record as being in strong support of present U.S. government policy to resolve this issue. The fullest possible accounting is achievable only through government to government efforts, and cooperation of the Indochinese governments is essential. Irresponsible private, cross-border forays jeopardize legitimate efforts to resolve this problem.

Dana (Scallion), pop and contemporary gospel music singer, will tour key Southern states through May 7 performing music from her latest Word Records album, "Let There Be Love."

She will appear Saturday, April 28 at 7:30 p.m. at the Virginia Beach Community Church.

Kurt Kaiser, who has produced both of her albums for Word, and will join the tour, describes "Let There Be Love" as a blend of English and Irish sounding material on one side and more American on the other.

"Stylistically she ranges from various intimate Irish songs that had so much to do with her growing up all the way to rhythms including the bossanova," Kaiser said.

Brought up in the heart of Belfast, Northern Ireland, Dana (pronounced Donna) opened her U.S. tour following a program at London's Royal Albert Hall with Princess Margaret attending. Immediately after the tour she returns to the Royal Albert Hall with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher attending.

Pruning part of landscape design work

The time to prune most broad-leaf and needle-leaf evergreens is just before new growth starts.

"The new growth that follows pruning will quickly hide the cut surfaces," said James A. Faist, Virginia Tech Extension specialist in landscape design.

Plants that have fully developed flower buds going into winter, should be pruned immediately after flowering. These include azalea, mahonia, leucothoe, and kalmia.

Pruning azaleas is limited to pinching out the tips of shoots on young plants or "heading back" which is the removal of older, spindly branches on open leggy specimens. Azaleas will develop a maximum compactness if about one inch of the tips of new plants are pinched after the shoots have elongated to two to four inches. Pinching once or twice a year until the plant is three years-old will assure a well rounded plant with branches close to the ground.

Prune rhododendrons by annually removing the flower clusters after the flowers have faded.

Routine pruning of boxwood plants is important to keeping them healthy. It should include the removal of all dead, broken, diseased, and undesirable parts of the plant. All dead leaves and twigs lodged in the inner branches or crotches should be removed annually.

Narrow-leaf evergreens generally come from the nursery well-shaped but if they grow ragged and unattractive, they can be pruned back at the ends of their branches without any danger or injury.

Faist recommended that gardeners know the natural size and growth rates of plants before they are put into the landscape to avoid pruning problems and maintain good design.

The Hint Man

By CHUCK FAULKNER

Resting Beads - The next time you are restringing beads, instead of thread, use dental floss. It's twice as strong.

Rhubarb, Cooking - When cooking rhubarb, add two tablespoons of any red jello crystals to the water to take away the tartness. You'll use less sugar, too.

Or sprinkle a small amount of baking soda in the boiling water.

Ribbon - When washed, smoothly wrap it around a clean glass bottle and let it dry in the open air.

Rice - To each quart of water, add one teaspoon of pure lemon juice. It not only keeps the grains white, but also prevents them from sticking together.

Ringworm - One of the best cures for ringworm is vinegar or the brine from pickled onions. Rub it directly onto the affected area every six minutes.

Roaches, Getting Rid Of - Mix together one cup of powdered borax, one half cup of white sugar and one cup of flour. Add just enough cold water to make a "biscuit-like" mixture. Spoon it out, a teaspoonful at a time, then roll between the palms into small balls. Set them out to dry in the sunshine. When they are dry, scatter them around the affected areas, such as under the sink, in the laundry.

Note: If it is not a sunny day, dry them in a low oven (200°F) for ten to fifteen minutes.

Another solution is to scatter powdered borax in your cupboards, on floors, in the bathroom.

Roasting Beef - Always place the roast fatty side up. This way the drippings will automatically baste the beef.

Rose Bushes, Getting Rid Of Aphids - If new rose buds are covered with aphids, sprinkle black pepper on the buds. By the next day the aphids will be gone.

Rose Bushes, Getting Rid Of Pests - A few chives, planted beneath your rose bushes, will counteract pests and diseases.

Rubber Heel Marks, Removing - A soft cloth dampened with turpentine or kerosene is best. A good brisk rub usually erases them.

Foot Reflexology

A drugless therapy to better health

By Susan Crane
Tidewater Chiropractic
Foot reflexology is a drugless therapy whose benefits are:

- Stress reduction through relaxation.
- Improved circulation.
- Normalization of body function.

• Preventive health care and maintenance.

Reflexology is a science based on the principle that there are reflex areas in the feet corresponding to all parts of the body.

Reflexology is an ancient Chinese technique. It was rediscovered in the early 1900's by medical doctors. Through the work and writings of Eunice Ingham in the 1930's reflexology was further refined and popularized. Only in the last few years has this cousin of acupuncture begun to attract attention. It is now successfully practiced throughout the world.

The feet are "worked" or massaged to stimulate the reflex areas. The reason for this stimulation is to cause a reaction in the corresponding parts of the body. This is a natural way to help your body's self-healing mechanism do its job better.

While "working" the feet, "crystals" may be felt. These "crystals" are waste deposits that build up in the capillaries at the nerve endings in the feet and hinder the free circulation of blood. A reflexology treatment breaks down the "crystals" so they can be flushed from the body. Tender places may also be felt and these like the "crystals" are indicators of problem points that may need special attention.

After a reflexology treatment, which lasts 30 to 40 minutes, the patient feels completely relaxed. It is relaxation that is essential in the reduction of stress and the normalization of body functioning.

The best part is that reflexology is a drugless treatment that anyone can learn very inexpensively. You can pay a specialist $15 or $20 but you don't have to.

Yorktown shipwreck reveals plenty of exciting historic finds

Two hundred years after the Battle of Yorktown, a picture of 18th-century shipboard life is beginning to emerge from the shallow waters of the York River. An extremely well preserved shipwreck, the current focus of the china cupboard. The latter are flat, semicircular planks with cutouts in the shapes of dishes.

Some artifacts are not so easy to analyze. When metal objects are submerged for long periods, they usually become encrusted with sand and shell. The "concretions" from shipwreck YO88 were examined through X-rays made at Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Company.

Project conservator Marie Renner says that "the concretions begin forming very quickly, so even if the original object has disintegrated, we can use the concretion as a mold. A cast made from a mold is often detailed enough to produce a perfect replica of the object."

recent book, Yorktown's Captive Fleet, has obtained copies of most of the British crew lists, which generally specified each crewman's occupation. A search is being made of these lists in an attempt to discover a carpenter with the initials "BR."

Excavating to the exacting standards required by archaeologists is possible because of a steel structure called a cofferdam. The cofferdam surrounds the ship, allowing the enclosed water to be filtered, thus improving visibility from less than one foot to as much as 25 feet. This technique, never before employed, has created a safe and favorable environment for diving archaeologists.

Project director Broadwater is anxious to begin diving. "Our results from

During 1983, work concentrated in the stern area of the hull, where the ship's captain and officers lived. The presence of deck beams and supports, called knees, indicates that the ship is preserved to the main deck level.

NOTICE OF TAX INCREASE

The City of Virginia Beach proposes to increase real property tax levies. However, the City Manager's proposed Operating Budget does not include an increase in the current tax rate of $.80 per $100 of assessed value.

1. Assessment Increase: Total assessed value of real property, excluding additional assessments due to new construction or improvements to property, exceeds last year's total assessed value of real property by 5.45 percent.

2. Lowered Rate Necessary to Offset Increased Assessment: The tax rate which would levy the same amount of real estate tax as last year, when multiplied by the new total assessed value of real estate with the exclusions mentioned above, would be $.76 per $100 of assessed value. This rate will be known as the "lowered tax rate."

3. Effective Rate Increase: The City of Virginia Beach proposes to adopt a tax rate of $.80 per $100 of assessed value. The difference between the lowered tax rate and the proposed rate would be $.04 per $100, or 5.26 percent. This difference will be known as the "effective tax rate increase."

Individual property taxes may however increase at a percentage greater than or less than the above percentage.

A public hearing on the increase will be held on Monday, April 23, 1984, at 2:00 p.m. and 7:00 p.m. in the City Council Chambers.

All hearings shall be open to the public. City Council shall permit persons desiring to be heard an opportunity to present oral testimony within such reasonable time limits as shall be determined by City Council. All interested parties are invited to be present at the time and place aforementioned. Individuals desiring to provide oral comment should register with the City Clerk's Office before the hearing begins. The City Clerk may be contacted at the office on the second floor of the City Hall Building or by calling 427-4303.

Cycles for Basic Transportation

With spring-like weather bursting all over, the roar of motorcycles is being heard throughout the land.

Pleasure biking on highways and streets remains the main activity for the motorcycling set, with fully 39 percent of all riding activity being done just for fun, according to the latest in an ongoing series of market surveys by Champion Spark Plug Company.

The use of motorcycles for basic transportation, however, represents the fastest-growing category, Champion reports, with the percentage of this type of travel moving to 33 percent from 23 percent just a few years ago.

Other uses highlighted in the survey, with the average percentage of time devoted to each: Trail riding, 18 percent; hill climbing, three percent; competition, two percent. Miscellaneous uses constitute the remaining four percent.

"The tremendous popularity of motorcycling in the last decade has resulted in a motorcycle population that consists primarily of late models," Champion reported in analyzing the results.

"About half of all motorcycles in use today have been manufactured since 1976."

ture most in demand by today's motorcyclists, with economy and acceleration close behind.

"This is why starting out the season with a properly maintained motorcycle is one of the best ways I know of insuring dependable operation with maximum performance," notes David L.
Walker, Champion's director of automotive technical services.

Tune-up good deal

"A tune-up, for example, means significant savings in fuel and peace of mind as well," Mr. Walker says.
"And this is true whether,
like 46 percent of the respondents, you drive your motorcycle fewer than 1,000 miles annually or, like 19 percent of those in our survey, you put more than 5,000 miles on that vehicle every year."

Some pointers offered by the technical experts at Champion to help prepare for trouble-free, economical motorcycling this summer:

- If you didn't do it before you stored your motorcycle for the winter, drain the fuel tank and replenish with fresh fuel.
- Install a new set of spark plugs.
- Thoroughly lubricate
all the control cables.
- Examine all the cables, hoses and lines, replacing them where necessary, and do a pedal and lever check to make sure the brakes are in good working order.

- Make sure the tires have the correct air pressure.
- If the battery's refillable, make sure the cells contain the required amount of water. Check the charge condition with a hydrometer and recharge

using low amperage.

- If your motorcycle has liquid cooling, drain and flush the system and install fresh coolant with a built-in rust inhibitor.

- Clean, wax and retouch those chrome and painted surfaces; unpainted surfaces should be lightly coated with oil to protect them against rust.

Virginia Beach opens alcohol abuse center

By Samuel Marquette, Jr.
Editor

Virginia Beach took a giant step forward in the treatment of alcohol abuse recently with the dedication of a new Alcohol Detoxification Center. Those arrested for being drunk in public, or who are referred by community members or social service organizations now have an alternative to jail or loneliness.

Reverend Fritz Stegemann, pastor of the Open Door Chapel, whose congregation has leased the facility to the city gave an invocation under a cloudless blue sky.

"One of the greatest killers in society today is alcoholism. The alcoholic has no place to go when he needs help. Since I am an alcoholic myself I can speak with authority. It has been 18 years since someone took the time to help me. And I've been free from alcohol ever since."

State Senator Clarence Holland had a different perspective on the alcoholic.

"I feel that I know what the problem means. As a physician I have seen many of the problems caused by alcohol. Seven to 10 percent of the U.S. population is estimated to be substance alcohol abusers," Holland told the crowd of 125 onlookers. "Take that down to our community and you don't have to look very hard to find that individual."

Vice Mayor Barbara M. Henley also made brief remarks before cutting the ribbon, formally opening the 12 bed facility.

"I've found it the rule rather than the exception that our Community Service Board reaches out to meet the needs of our community," Henley said. "I feel the Council has been privileged to help bring this project to completion."

The Center has four large rooms with three beds in each, as well as a spacious kitchen, complete with microwave oven. A staff of eight will offer 24 hour attention to those who need to dry out in safety.

"We want to provide a safe withdrawal in a non-medical setting," Tom Wagner explained. Wagner is a Detoxification Supervisor attached to the Center.

"We do an initial screening that may take 15 minutes, and if we determine they are intoxicated with alcohol, rather than another drug, we will take their vital signs and admit them, and continue to take those vital signs every half hour over the next 12 hours."

The average length of a person's stay should be three to four days, according to Perry Ustick, Director of the Detoxification Center.

"We envision that from a criminal justice perspective it would reduce the burden at the jails, making more room for dangerous criminals," Ustick said.

"From a human service standpoint, we would be identifying those with alcohol problems. Let me be clear though. Those stopped for drunken driving will still be arrested. Our facility is for those who are drunk in public, or who are brought in by community members."

"Sunday Puncher" homecoming

Dual attack airwing returns from Med

VA 85 returns from Lebanon

The "Sunday Punchers" of Attack Squadron Seventy-five (VA75) commanded by Commander Jim Glover recently returned from a very successful and demanding deployment aboard the U.S.S. John F. Kennedy (CV67). The cruise, which began in September of last year, provided a wide variety of opportunities and challenges for the squadron.

The majority of the cruise was spent deployed to the East Mediterranean, however, it began with a brief excursion to the South Atlantic with a port call in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, where the squadron held its change of command and participated in an air power demonstration for the Brazilian Navy. After a brief visit, the squadron found its way across the Atlantic and through the Straits of Gibraltar where it participated in joint exercises with Spain. This gave the aircrews a chance to fly low level simulated strikes throughout the countryside of Spain.

The Eastern Mediterranean and Lebanon then became the focus of the squadron's attention. Many long hours of planning, loading and downloading ordnance, standing alerts, and constant maintenance were put in by all hands in order to meet operational commitments in support of the Multinational Peace-keeping Forces in Lebanon. On December 4, 1983 and again on February 6, 1984 the "Sunday Punchers" provided air strikes into Lebanon in support of U.S. Forces. On both occasions the squadron met with success and returned safely.

On the lighter side, port visits were few but very enjoyable. Haifa, Israel provided the crew with an opportunity to visit the Holy Land. The mid-cruise break came in Naples, Italy, where many of the "Sunday Punchers" wives took advantage of the opportunity to visit their husbands and do some touring of Italy.

Squadron members are proud of their accomplishments this cruise, most notably were the completion of four years of mishap free operations and the selection as the CNO Safety "S" award winners for 1983. With their return the "Sunday Punchers" are looking forward to a brief stand down prior to once again rebuilding and training the squadron during the turn-around cycle.

The officers and men of VA 85, having deployed on board the U.S.S. Kennedy after an extremely brief turnaround, recently returned to the Oceana Naval Air Station from duty on Bagel Station, where the carrier maneuvered 20 miles off the coast of Lebanon while the attack group flew more than 2000 sorties in support of the Marines.

The squadron saw only 21 days of port time during the seven and a half month deployment, according to a VA 85 spokesman, and flew 995 sorties without a miss between December '83 and April '84.

A6E of the type flown by VA 75 and VA 85 in Lebanon.

In concert with VA 75, the squadron served as the first dual A6E airwing, flying all A6 Bombers instead of having the usual A7 Corsair Light Attack Bombers normally attached.

VA 85 provided seven of the 10 strike aircraft on the December 4 strike into Lebanon, and saw extended periods of 24 hour tactical air (TACAIR) operations.

The Kennedy departed on September 27, 1983 and returned May 1.

Real estate assessment

Personal judgement plays a part

By Lee Cahill

The job of assessing the value of properties is hardly a true science, and Virginia Beach City Real Estate Assessor Jerry Banagan would be the first to admit that.

Banagan told Council at an Operating Budget workshop recently that personal judgment plays a big part in making appraisals. That is why he says even when his office is computerized in about 18 months, the individual appraiser will still be important.

Appraisals at the Beach are approximately 80 percent of true value, Banagan said. He added that he could easily bring all appraisals up to 100 percent of valuation, but that he had "no burning desire to do that." Banagan said he finds it better to be on the conservative side.

Banagan explained that assessments lag behind current value because appraisals which will be reflected in the 1984 tax rolls are based on two-year old values. He said that it takes one year to reassess all the properties in Virginia Beach so that the process to determine this year's values was started last January when only 1982 values were available. Banagan said he considers equity the main part of his job.

Reassessments show a dramatic jump in values of apartment, hotel and waterfront property

An excellent guide for the assessor is the brisk sale of property at the Beach providing the main criterion—the sales price, for making assessments. Banagan said that of the other 100,000 pieces of property appraised at the Beach, 20,000 under current sales.

Banagan said the city has an equitable but conservative system.

Reassessments show a dramatic jump in values of apartment, hotel and waterfront property, with increases ranging from eight and nine percent for hotels to 15 percent for waterfront property. Apartment values appreciated from 12 to 15 percent. The city-wide average increase is five percent.

Of the 100,000 pieces of property appraised, 13,000 were assessed at 10 percent more than last year, Banagan said. Other properties were assessed at less than five percent more.

Assessments generally reflect one-year's appreciation in value. Sometimes the assessment reflects an adjustment in the previous year's assessment, which may have been too low. Properties in rural Pungo and Blackwater appreciated the least, he said, although the assessment of marsh and swamp land increased "dramatically," but this was on values as low as $100 to $200 an acre.

In reviewing the city's assessments, Banagan said, the State will compare them with 1984-85 data. Actually the values would be within 90 to 95 percent of the true values of 1982.

Councilman H. Jack Jennings Jr. has pointed out that individuals from northern states might come in and pay more for property than it is worth because they are unfamiliar with prices here. This would tend to boost the prices and penalize other taxpayers.

Banagan replied that it was true that some people pay more than property is worth, but that the assessor weeds out sales that don't fit the pattern. He explained that the Office does not routinely select to make increases five percent more, but that the five percent average is actually after the fact—after the assessments have been made according to criteria. All data available is used, Banagan said, and the office recognizes the fact that everything does not sell according to plan or theory. However, sales prices are the best indication of true value.

If assessments are in a new neighborhood adjustments are made so that the purchaser of new property will not be paying at 1984 values while the rest of the city pays at 1982 values.

Banagan said he has computer terminals at present, but has not selected the type of programming he wants. Information he would compile with a computer is also wanted by other departments. For instance, the fire chief would like to know how many bedrooms a home has. Banagan is looking for a computer to give a more detailed report. "I spend a lot of time sitting with appraisers punching a calculator."

A computer, Banagan concluded, "can't determine the quality of a house." He said he alternates his people so the same individual isn't always appraising the same property. "We can get information from a computer," Banagan said, "but I'm not satisfied we can't do away with the individual."
